DEPUTY SHERIFF IS HELD ON $4000 BOND FOR DEATH OF SLAIN BROTHER OFFICER

Funeral services were held Monday afternon at 2:30 at the residence in Lilbourn for Jesse Henderson, age 38, City Marshal at Lilbourn, who was fatally wounded at a ball game at Parma, Sunday afternoon, by Cleatus Smith, deputy sheriff.

It is alleged that Smith was attempting to keep a drunken man out of the ball park and Henderson attempted to infere when Smith struck the man over the head with his pistol, which discharged, the bullet striking Henderson in the chest, killing him instantly. Witnesses state that Smith had his finger on the trigger of the gun when he struck the man.

Coroner's inquest was held Monday morning and a verdict of murder in the first degree was returned. Smith was held in the County jail without bond until Tuesday afternoon. He was released on $400 bond under the habeaus corpus act.

Henderson leaves a wife and four children. Interment was made in the Evergreen cemetery at New Madrid.

RABBIT BREEDERS TO MEET MONDAY

The Southeast Missouri Rabbit Breeders' Association will hold its regular monthly meeting Sunday afternoon, 2:30 o'clock, at the home of S. L. Lawrence in this city. All members are requested to attend and "bring a friend".

Members of the association invite anyone interested in rabbit breeding to attend.

The group now number 38 persons on its membership roll, and embraces the following towns, New Madrid, Cape Girardeau, Dexter, Sikeston Charleston, Poplar Bluff and Piedmonth. The advisability of holding another rabbit show similar to the one conducted this summer will come under discussion.

The Association sponsored its first rabbit show this summer, June 8 and 9 in the Sexton Building, Sikeston. It was estimated that between 2500 and 3000 persons atended the showing of pedigreed stock.

Selection of a permanent meeting place and the election of one person to act as a general purchasing agent for the Association will come under discuss the meeting Sunday afternoon.

STEAL TWO CHICKENS, TWO YEARS IN PRISON

Two months ago a tramp awoke in a Sikeston box car when an unknown party threw a sack of chickens into his improvised "bed". He assisted local officers in making the arrest of Ben Hart, negro.

The chickens, two in number, were recovered and Hart last week faced a judge. Wednesday he departed for Jefferson City in company with Jess Wilkins, Constable of New Madrid, to take up his new residence in the State penitentiary. He will remain two years as guest of the State.

In the party with Hart and officer Wilkins were Will Taylor, negro of Portageville, five years for check forgery, for $8.25, and Will Jones, negro, Steele, two years for obtaining money under false pretenses.

SIKTSTON WORKING PEOPLE'S CHURCH AROUSING PEOPLE ALL OVER NATION

The proposed new Sikeston church for working people, which will be the only church in the United States of the Fundamentalist type, where all of the Bible is preached, believed and taught, wholely dedicted to the common people, the rank and file of America, is arousing nation-wide interest. Elder John B. Huffman is the founder-pastor, without salary.

An architect of Paducah, Ky., has written us that he will furnish plans and blue prints for the new edifice free of charge.

"The Publishers' Auxiliary", a journal of 15000 circulation, wholely published in the interests of newspaper men, printers, editors, special feature and advertising people, published small article on the front page of that publication in the issue of October 25, top of second column, with a border around the notice.

An Eastern syndicate, through their special correspondent, has asked for special articles concerning this unusual church and also paid for a photographer taking four pictures of Elder Huffman, which wa done and sent out Wednesday night

S. W. Applegate, O. L. Spencer and Buckner-Ragsdale Store Co. are among the number who have sent us donations on the new church building and lots since last week's issue of The Standard. Also two or three others who have sent us a letter subscribing a certain amount they have donated, but deferred payment of the money until a later date. Others will contribute before the close of the week.

Every cent that has been sent or handed in to me is still on hand. Have not used one penny of the money so far. Have spent several dollars for stamps, stamped envelopes stationery and some incidental expenses, but I have borne all this expense myself. Every penny will be placed in banks and books kept of all receipts and expenditures and nothing will be paid out without showing to whom and what for. The writer has managed the construction of a number of churches now under his supervision in Missouri, Arkansas, Louisian., Texas, North Carolina Michigan, Canada, etc., but this is the only one where the general public and folks of other churches and those who are not connected with any church, are asked to supply all the money for the building. The Working People's Church is the only one I have raised, or helped to raise the money to erect, that has entailed so much worry, personal time, sacrifice devotion and expenditure of my own money to construct. I never knew of a minister in this age undergoing such a trial without a penny and furnishing his own money for incidental expenses incurred.

We expect people to attend this church regularly for 50 miles around and at intervals by folks from all over the Nation.

The church will be just as nice and as commodious as the money contributed will erect. We want to construct a building 40x60, with basement, concrete front and back steps and walk, brick veneer, vestibule and modern conveniences. Will build just what the money sent in will construct. Can't commence work for 30 or 60 days yet.

Send your donation to Elder John B. Huffman, Box 476, Sikeston, Mo., and you will be aiding one of the best causes in the world.

Thank you, Mr. Standard editor, you have contributed more than all by your liberal allowance of space for our church notices.—John B. Huffman.

LAD OBEYS HEALTH LAW RAT CHEWS ON NOSE

After this Johnnie Robertson, 503 Moore Avenue, will sleep with his nose under cover, health authorities and fresh air addicts to the contrary notwithstanding. He obeyed this health law Tuesday night. Wednesday morning at 2:15 o'clock, he awakened horrified to find a rat gnawing on his olfactory organ.

Anti-tetanus shots have been adminstered and Johnnie's nose is swathed in gauze and bandages. Friends are considering a gift of the prose works of Edgar Allen Poe.

If the philosophy of Messrs. Legge and Hyde were correct the recent protracted drouth should have thoroughly solved the farm relief problem. Since it has not done so, the farmers of the Corn Belt States cannot be blamed for refusing to accept the philosophy of these eminent representatives of the Hoover administration.—Linneus, Mo., Bulletin.

SCOUTS IN DISTRICT WILL PARTICIPATE IN 'EFFICIENCY' INTER-TROOP TESTS

For five weeks, November 2 to December 6, inclusive, the Boy Scout troops of Charleston, Cape Girardeau, Sikeston and Poplar Bluff will participate in an Inter-troop Rating Plan, which will provide a test of the efficiency of the troop.s It is not so much a contest with one troop working against another, but rather it is proposed as a means of comparing the actual effectiveness of our troops with what is regarded as a standard.

The plan is so arranged that every troop has the same opportunity to reach the goals set as has every other troop. The items of the plan have been carefully chosen, and the points allowed have been evaluated with the greatest of care. It is believed that Scoutmasters will find the contest a wholesome stimulus to the kind of Scouting they want their troops to do, and that every effort spent in its promotion will be found profitable.

It will be noticed that every troop can win a first prize. To win does not mean to beat some other troop but to reach a certain goal. Of course, the standing of a given troop in comparison with other troops of the community, or the Area, may be used as a stimulus to Scouts to do their best, but the idea back of the contest is non-competitive.

The Rating Plan furnishes the basis for every troop to put every phase of its Scouting actively on new and higher levels. It provides incentive for Scout advancement on a basis which should be permanently helpful It purposes to build up a set of Scout habits which shall last through the coming months, bringing to the Area new and and permanent standards of Scouting efficiency. It has in it the possibility of reducing the Scoutmaster's worries to a minimum It will stimulate Church attendance and participation in religious activities. It provides stimulus for bettering school work. The contest will do for the troop what its leaders most earnestly desire that it shall do.

The period of Troop Rating will start Sunday, November 2nd and continue through Saturday, December 6 making five weeks. All registered Scouts and commissioned officials are included. A list of eligible Scouts and officials, according to the office records will be mailed to each Scoutmaster prior to November 2.

Troops will be rated on a point basis. It is possible for a troop to secure 1645 points. This is computed by assuming that a perfect score is made in all items every week, and in all final items, that three new recruits are secured, and that two hikes are taken by each Scout. If bonus points on tests are earned, or if more than three recruits are secured, or if more than two hikes are taken, it is possible to secure more than 1645 points.

Troops will be rated as "Superior" "Standard", or "Satisfactory". If a total of 1300 points, (80 per cent) is earned, the troop will receive a "Superior" banner; if 1150 points, (71 per cent) are earned, the troop will receive the "Standard" banner; if 1000 points, (60 per cent) are earned, the troop will receive a "Satisfactory" banner. On this liberal basis every troop in the Area should receive a banner.

The following items are included in the rating:

Troop meeting held on regular night.
Attendance of registered Scouts at Troop meetings.
Wearing of the uniform.
Attendance of commissioned officials.
Attendance of troop committeemen
Content of Troop meeting.
Troop officers' meeting.
Attendance of Scouts at church.

WOUNDED BOY NEAR DEATH IN CAIRO HOSPITAL

Cairo, October 29.—Raymer Morrow, 19, high school youth, of Anniston, Mo., remains in a critical condition at St. Mary's Hospital, where he is suffering from a shotgun wound received accidently when he held the muzzle of the gun and struck at a rabbit with the stock of the weapon while out hunting with Al Bone near Anniston at noon Tuesday. In striking at the rabbit, young Morrow had thought the safety lug was in position on the gun.

The full load of shot struck the youth low in the body and ranged upward through his abdomen. Surgeons removed four feet of his intestines in a desperate to save his life. It was estimated that more than 200 shots entered young Morrow's body.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Morrow. His father is one of the most prominent levee contractors in this section of the country.

While the youth lies at St. Mary's with only a fighting chance to live his grandmother, Mrs. G. W. Forgery, lies at the point of her death in her home at Anniston.

FIND JOINT OF PREHISTORIC ANIMAL

New Madrid, October 28.—The bone of a prehistoric monster was found in the river bottom near Portageville this week by Dr. H. O'Kelley of Portageville, who was hunting there. The bone is about two feet long and weighs 25 pounds and at the join is over a foot wide. It appears to be part of the lower extermity of some gigantic animal that once inhabited the earth, though these monsters were not known to have inahbited this part of the country. It was partly buried in the mud in the swamp and a part was broken off. It is possible that it might have washed there during some flood period. The bone will be presented to the State Museum for study and display.

"A Chicken For Every Pot"

Only the meanest of Democrats would hold the Republican party entirely responsible for the present hard times. As Calvin Coolidge pointed out the other day, nobody can be blamed for the drouth. And we know that the economic depression is world-wide.

This being true, it may seem unfair to reprint at this unhappy moment some of the promises made by the Republican party management during the golden months of 1928. Nevertheless, we propose to do just that and then to explain why.

There appeared shortly before the 1928 election an advertisement entitled "Chicken For Every Pot". Consider some of its phrases:

"The Republican party isn't a 'poor man's party'. Republican prosperity has erased that degrading phrase from our political vocabulary. The Republican party is equality's party—opportunity's party—democracy's party—the party of national development, not sectional interests—the impartial servant of every state and condition in the Union.

"Republican efficiency has filled the workingman's dinner pail—and his gasoline tank besides—made telephone, radios and sanitary plumbing standard household equipment, and placed the whole nation in the silk stocking class.

"Republican prosperity is written on fuller wage envelopes, written in factory chimney smoke, written on the walls of new construction, written in savings bank books, writen in mercantile balances, and written in the peak value of stocks and bonds.

"Republican prosperity has reduced hours and increased earning capacity, silenced discontent, put the proverbial 'chicken in every pot', and a car in every backyard to boot."

Which ought to be about enough of that. Already you are asking: "Why bring that up?"

Not because of a desire to point out that little or any of it is true nor or was true even at the time it was printed. Not to point out that the Republican party was claiming credit in 1928 for good times that it hadn't invented or manufactured or even inteligently promoted. Any party in power would have made the same claim.

Nor is it because we wish to remind the Republican management that the party is actually responsible for some of our present hard times. The erection of a tariff that already has cut seriously into our foreign trade, for instance. The refusal to put through a program to forestall widespread unemployment, on the one hand, and aid the unemployed, on the other.

No, it has nothing to do with the party's sins in the past. It has to do with the present and future.

For the Republican party is on the stump in the present congressional campaign, not promising to undo the damage done through the tariff, but defending its suicidal action; not promising to expedite measures to safeguard against future unemployment, but preserving a clammy silence on this all-important subject.

While this is the attitude of the party's responsible spokesmen in 1930, we feel a reminder of the platinum promises of 1928 is not out of place.

AN "INTELLIGENT" JURY

Twelve torn bits of paper, each approximately two inches square, came into the possesion of a Toledo law firm recently. They were the original ballots cast by the jurors who served during the trial of a criminal case in Lucas County common pleas court. The jury disagreed, three members voting not guilty and nine guilty.

On six ballots the word "guilty" was spelled correctly. On six it was spelled incorrectly, gilty, guity or guilde. The word was misspelled on all the "not guilty" ballots, but what cares the defendant who escaped conviction by his peers?

The jury box isn't a spelling school. Sound judgment and practical experience in the affairs of the world are more important than the intricacies of English word architecture. Even a United States Senator slipped up recently on "tranquillity" omiting one "l" and citing as his authority the United States Constitution rather than the dictionary.

But when 50 per cent of the members of a body charged with grave responsibilities involving the liberty and reputation of a citizen and the protection of society stumble over a much-used 6-letter word, it may be time to talk about an intelligence test as qualification for jury service. —Toledo Blade.

The play, 'Romance", at the Malone Theatre, Sunday and Monday with Greta Garbo in the leading role, was one of the most splendid attractions that has been offered in many a day. The actress was very sweet and gentle and "The Last Rose of Summer", the song that ran thru the play, brought back to memory many songs of crinoline days that will forever linger in the minds of many of our older citizens. The Romance was taken from the actual life of Robert Armstrong Chandler former sheriff of Brooklyn, N. Y., who married Lina Cavallini, the noted Italian opera singer, who still lives. Chandler but recently died in New York at the age of 58 years. He divorced his Italian beauty many years ago. This play was very impressive with touches of sadnes running through the entire play.

The Illinois Department of Conservation has actually begun tagging fish. Meaning just that. Mr. and Mrs. Fish now carry tales as well as tails. Small metal tags clamped to the "factor of motion" will be numbered. Fishermen in the tri-States area are asked to report that number, time and locale of the catch and size, weight and condition of the marked fish.

That is after said fish has been placed "on the spot". What next.

WRITER OF PICCOLLO PETE SONGS COMING

They are on their way, this ruthless dance music aggregation called the Texas Tommies and directed by the famous composer-leader, Phil Baxter. Their appearance in Sikeston Friday night, under the auspices of the American Legion, is not far in the offing and there is breathless suspense in the air, for everyone has at least heard of their accomplishments and can guess at their further potentialities.

Phil Baxter, himself ,born of a musical family, played his first professional engagement at the age of fourteen when he droned out one tune of a third rate piano in a noisy skating rink. Conditions have changed in fifteen years for Baxter however. The oniy thing of importance that young Phil has carried with him during his rise in the profession has been the accomplishment of playing music solely by ear. During his whole eventful and successful career, Phil Baxter has never learned to read a written note of music. He is unusually sensitive to rhythm and harmony and it has been this that has helped him to make a name for himself.

While he was in the war, Baxter played the piano, mostly dealing in harmony chords. Paul Whiteman played the fiddle to his accompaniment and the two made their duty to amuse the sick sailors and marines at a hospital on Mare Island California. With these two now famous musical gentlemen, Rudy Weidoff of saxophone renown made the third. He was the marine band master at the island. From Whiteman and Weidoff, young Baxter learned a great deal about the music that interested him. His association with them was more instructive than any amount of printed matter and a metronome would have been. So following his ambitions, Baxter joined an orchestra as a pianist after the war had ended. Not much later his present occupation of orchestra leading was forced upon him and after a while he grew to like it. Now he realizes it is the ideal occupation for him, for it furnishes him an outlet for the hit songs he seems to turn out with great ease to the delight of the world.

In the meantime, under the exclusive management of the Music Corporation of America, Phil Baxter leads his rhythmic band through torrid zones of modern dance music playing at dance places of importance, recording for Victor and broadcasting over the air. For that reason it is only fair to issue the warning—the Texas Tommies are coming

TO VOTERS OF SCOTT COUNTY

I have endeavored to see all the voters, and if I have failed to see you, I take this opportunity of soliciting your vote for the office of JUDGE of the PROBATE COURT, and will appreciate anything you may do in my behalf.

During each generation a large part of the real estate and personal property of the County is administered through the Probate Court where land titles often become confused.

I have had 18 years experience as a lawyer and examiner of land titles and more than 25 years business experience and dealing with estates of deceased persons; and if elected on November 4th, I will try to conduct the affairs of the office in a manner as to merit your continued confidence.

O. L. SPENCER

Democratic Nominee for Probate Judge

—VOTE FOR—

M. E. MONTGOMERY

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

IT IS GOOD BUSINESS, AND HE DESERVES IT ON HIS RECORD

BECAUSE

1. Scott County has been made one of the cleanest counties in this section of the State.

2. During his 3 years and 9 month as prosecuting attorney he has handled over 1000 criminal cases, including several for highway robbery, rape, bank robbery and murder.

3. Thru his efforts $11,077.34 has been assessed and collected in fines from law violators and placed to the credit of the county school fund, and $2987.50 has been collected in prosecuting attorney fees for securing convictions, and paid over to the County, making a total of $14,064.84, which is $4060.84 more than the total salary the county pays him ($2500 per year) for his full 4-year term.

4. He has secured convictions and penitentiary or reform school sentences against 75 felons for a total of 275 years.

5. Of the great number of criminals he has prosecuted, only 5 have been acquitted by juries.

6. His reputation has become such that during the August, 1930 term of the Circuit Court, not a single defendant stood trial, 18 pleading guilty, 10 of them to felonies. As the costs of a jury trial in Circuit Court averages from $50.00 to $100.00 in jury fees, witness fees, etc., the taxpayers were saved more than $1000.00 in court costs at this one term of court.

8. All of the above figures can be verified from the records of the Circuit Clerk, the County Clerk and County Treasurer at Benton. We challenge comparison of Mr. Montgomery's record with the record of any previous prosecuting attorney of this county, or any other county in this section of the State.

9. His honesty and integrity have never been questioned.

10. This important office should be filled by an experienced attorney of proven ability.

Lice on poultry will keep your profits down. One of the best methods getting rid of these creatures according to County Agent Renner is to clean the house thoroughly applying crude oil or old car oil to all cracks on the roosting poles and dropping boards. Before the fowls go to roost apply a very small quantity of Nicotine Sulphate (Trade Name) Black Leaf 40 to the roost. This material liberates a gas which will work all through the feathers of the birds and kills the lice that are on the bodies of the poultry.

Cowpeas, beans, popcorn and other grain either for seed or for human consumption can be kept free from weevils if properly handled. One of the easiest methods is to place the grain to be treated in barrels or a tight bin and applying carbon bisulfide at the rate of 3 to 5 pounds per 100 bushels of grain. Carbon bisulfide makes a gas which is heavier than air thus place the material in open saucers on top of the grain and cover the container barrel or box with sacks to keep the fumes down. All forms of insect life will be killed by this operation. If the seed is allowed to say in the open after treating, the application should be repeated in about thirty days. For other methods of treating your seed see your County Agent.

We are desirous of making it very plain to our Republican friends that the mistake which appeared in the Advertisement of Congressman Dewey Short's Wednesday night address was not intentional, as, whatever our editorial opinion may be of his ability as a Congressman, would not influence us in any way in trying to deliberately make an error in an advertisement. We try to give the news fairly and impartially and our advertisements to the best of our ability and intention are correct as to the copy handed to us, but sometime in the rush of things, we are only human and do occasionally make mistakes. However, if anyone made his appearance at the Armory Tuesday night under the impression that he was to hear a Republican speech, we believe that a few moments of attention would have corrected his belief.

SIX OF NINETEEN POULTRY PROJECTS SUPERVISED BY MO. PAC. ARE IN MISSOURI

A total of six out of nineteen of the poultry demonstration projects carried on under the supervision of the Missouri Pacific Agricultural Development Department are located in Missouri, and three of them are in our immediate territory being located in Charleston, Bertrand and Doniphan. The projects are to demonstrate what can be done with an average poultry flock if properly managed.

Projects in Jasper, Hendrickson and Warsaw have met with the requirements of the State College of Agriculture.

H. A. Tanner, agent at Doniphan, who has long been an influence in other phases of agricultural work, as well as poultry, in his community has found it necessary to discontinue his demonstration temporarily because of added duties at his station which do not allow him to give the required amount of time to his flock

L. J. Schwab, agent at Bertrand, is one of the most enthusiastic of the Missouri Pacific demonstrators He is carrying the gospel of practical poulrty management throughout his territory. He started his demonstration on a modest scale and now has a 30x30 Missouri Pacific type straw loft laying house and a 12x24 double brooder house. He will have a laying flock of approximately 300 hens this winter. He sells hatching eggs, a few baby chicks, and some cockerels for breeding stock. His flock is state accredited, having met the requirements of breeding and management of the State College of Agriculture

E. E. Oliver, agent at Charleston is conducting a very fine demonstration of a small town backyard flock While he must necessarily keep his flock small because of lack of space he has a well equipped laying house and keeps his hens in high production.

Mrs. H. L. Smith and Miss Myra Tanner will leave Friday for a weekend visit in Cape Girardeau. Mrs. Smith will be the guest of the House Mother, Mrs. Ella Hutton, while Miss Tanner will be entertained by the Dean, Miss Gillard. They anticipate the pleasure of hearing the Navy Band and will return Sunday evening.

"That Interesting Store"

Furniture—Radio—Undertaking

Our 33rd Year in Charleston

A good bulk of our trade comes from folks who are interested more in the service they get from furniture than in style lines. This is true not because they do not like stylsih articles in the home, but because their pocketbooks are somewhat flat, preventing them from indulging in late styles which cost a good deal. For these hundreds of families our used furniture department on top floor affords many excellent values in furniture that has years of real service ahead. Chain stores and mail order houses may shade us a few cents now and then on new items but for the poor man who must stretch his dollars to the limit our top floor bargains have them skinned a block. As an example there is a very pretty Queen Anne dining set of eight pieces, all in A1 condition which may be purchased for $50—less than half original cost.

And when it comes to new goods you will be impressed with the exceptional values received lately on living room suites at $85.00, bedroom sets at $120.00 and dining outfits in a decidedly new design for $135.00—any of which are consistent with nice homes. Trade in your old pieces on the purchase of new.

On the subject of Radio, a demand has lately come about for very small sets known as "Midgets". They sell for a good deal lower price than the larger models and some of them are reliable. A new one in this line comes to us this week. It is the "CLARION JR." and is regarded as one of the leaders in that field. You must see it to appreciate its full value. The selling price is $63.30 complete. Look up the big ad in this week's Collier's, page 34. It is a wonder—somewhat ahead of others—and—look at the price again.

The factory man from the Monarch Range factory will be in Charleston again next week to make his regular round selling this remarkable range. He has some especially attractive terms for farmers who find it inconvenient to pay monthly. Monarchs are leaders in fine ranges. Money is not spared in keepig them at the front.

The patter of tiny feet was heard from the head of the stair. Mrs. Smythe raised her hand, warning the members of her bridge club to be silent.
"Hush", she said softly. "The children are going to deliver their good-night message. It always gives me a feeling of reverence to hear them. Listen".
"Mamma", came the message in a shrill whisper, "Willie found a bedbug".

Work of Two Brilliant Men Revolutionized Dairying

Prying Professor Found Simple Way to Measure Fat Content of Cream; Cream Separator Work of Swedish Inventor.

Two adventurous and brilliant men working in different parts of the world practically revolutionized the greatest rural industry in the United States. A prying professor named Babcock, working in the laboratory of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, found a simple, accurate way to determine the butterfat content of milk or cream. A brilliant inventive genius named De Laval, laboring in his workshop in Sweden, found a way by which whole milk could be accurately, continuously and quickly separated into cream and skimmilk. De Laval also inaugurated the research which resulted in the widely-used efficient mechanical milker of today.

Dr. De Laval.

Professor Babcock's discovery stabilized the dairy industry. Doctor De Laval's separator saved farm women millions of dollars' worth of cream while his milking machine saved farm men millions of hours of drudgery.

"When it is realized," says Dr. C. W. Larson, former director of the National Dairy Council, "that the change from the gravity method of obtaining cream for buttermaking and other purposes to the continuous separator resulted in the saving of labor, a better quality of cream and butter, a skim milk superior for feeding purposes and available for the manufacture of by-products, and a great saving of the butterfat that was lost in the skim milk, the value of this ingenious invention can scarcely be overestimated.

Old Methods Wasteful.

"If all the cream that was used in this country last year for making butter alone had been separated by the deep-setting system, which was the best method known at the time the centrifugal separator was invented, more than $35,000,000 worth of butterfat would have been left in the skim milk. This does not take into consideration the enormous quantity of cream that was used as cream and for making ice cream. By the old method much more labor would have been required in the homes and in the factories, and the present high quality of products could not have been made."

The cream separator eliminates the great waste which accompanies hand skimming methods. According to experiments conducted at the Indiana State Experiment Station in separating a certain quantity of milk, 26.2 pounds of butterfat were lost by shallow pan gravity setting, and 40.07 pounds were lost by water dilution, while only 1.2 pounds were lost when a centrifugal separator was used. This gives one an idea of the enormous losses which occur from hand skimming and which a good separator eliminates. In addition, it saves all the time, trouble, bother of setting, handling and washing pans, and provides the skim milk in a sweet condition, ideal for feeding young stock. This is extremely important, as much of the profit from dairying comes from proper utilization of skim milk.

Find Worn Separators Faulty.

There are many separators in use today, however, that are wasting valuable butterfat in the skim milk without the owner knowing of his losses. Badly worn separators, or ones that were of faulty construction to begin with, should be replaced. A farm wife can tell whether her coffee grinder is grinding fine, medium or coarse by merely looking at the texture of the coffee after it has passed through the grinder. But no one can tell how much cream a separator is wasting by looking at the skim milk, nor by filling a glass with skim milk and allowing it to "set" on the window sill for a day or more to see how much cream rises to the top. When one "sets" skim milk that has gone through the separator it cannot be expected that the small, hard-to-get fat globules will work their way through the milk serum and rise to the top unless there is an unusually heavy loss. "Setting" skim milk is merely an impractical way of trying to test an inefficient separator by the more inefficient gravity setting "test."

Many By-Products to 'Cream Farming'

No More Profit to Farmer in "Higher Price" of Fluid Milk.

The best system of farming is the one which results in the greatest financial advantage and contributes most to the farmer's economic wants, accord to the De Laval Bureau of Dairying. It's the profit, not just the amount received for farm products that counts.

During recent years there has been a tendency among farmers to go into the production of fluid milk for the big city market without realizing that it costs in the neighborhood of 50 cents per 100 pounds more to produce the kind of milk consumers in the cities are demanding. Surveys made by a Mid-Western Agricultural college showed that it was costing farmers $2.15 to $2.60 per hundred pounds to produce milk for which they received only $2.50, and that of the 14 cents per quart for milk paid by the consumer the dealer received 8.6 cents and the farmer 5.3 cents.

Higher Price, But No More Profit.

The desire to sell milk as whole milk rather than as cream or milk to be converted into butter or cheese is due to a belief that the "higher price" leaves the greatest profit, says the Bureau. The skim milk profit angle is too often completely forgotten. When whole milk is shipped the profits that could be made from skim milk, the valuable by-products of "cream farming," are lost. The returns it is possible to make by properly making use of the skim milk retained on the farm after the cream has been separated from the whole milk is something far-sighted stock and dairy farmers should not overlook.

An explanation of the advantages of retaining skim milk on the farm is worked out in an example cited by a leading dairy authority as follows:

"The good creamery last year paid at least an average price of 50 cents a pound for fat. This would bring a return of $1.75 net for 3½ per cent milk. The skim milk left on the farm is easily worth 50 cents out of every 100 pounds, provided of course the dairy farmer is raising the right kind of live stock. This brings his milk to $2.25 net. It has been calculated by those who have given the matter study that it costs in the neighborhood of 50 cents more to produce the kind of milk that the consumers of Chicago are demanding. Adding this to the price returned by the creamery, we have $2.75. Out of this $2.75 the expense of operating the association must come and the milk must be hauled to the local plant, which costs from 10 to 20 cents a hundred. In other words, the person selling whole milk can scarcely expect to net any more than $2.50 a hundred. This would leave but 25 cents a hundred for the production of milk over that which the creamery pays and it is doubtful whether this will compensate for more than 50 per cent of the additional costs of producing market milk.

Here's How to Figure It Out.

"Further, when skim milk is used on the farm it permits a different type of farming to be developed. It is difficult, indeed, to say how much more a farmer can earn if he raises his calves, some hogs and chickens. This will depend upon the management of the farm, but it is a factor of no small consequence and should be considered by those who would leave their creameries and cheese factories in order to get what appears to be a much higher price for their milk."

FIND MECHANICAL MILKER CUTS COSTS

Tests completed at the Iowa State Agricultural college showed a saving of 50 per cent in time and 25 per cent in costs by milking cows through the use of a mechanical system, reports the De Laval Bureau of Dairying.

The experiments were conducted to determine the labor economy and any reduction in costs that might come through the use of the milking machine as compared with the common practice of milking by hand. The objection frequently heard that the saving in time achieved by mechanical milking is more than offset by the extra labor involved in washing the utensils was shown to have no basis. It was found that with the machine the entire milking job, including the necessary cleaning of the mechanical equipment, could be done in half the time required by hand. It was also shown that the saving in labor cost more than offset the cost of the milker. Not only did the milking machine save time and lower the cost of the milking operation, but it also removed a great deal of the drudgery of milking.

Costly to Feed Hogs Skimmilk Rich in Fat

On many farms wornout, improperly designed or poorly constructed separators are in daily use, despite the valuable educational work of the agricultural colleges, county agents and cow-test association supervisors, states the De Laval Bureau of Dairying. Instead of serving as "cream savers" these faulty machines have become "cream thieves." One state cow-testing association report published last year showed 19 separators losing $50 a month. It is costly business to feed butterfat worth $44 per hundred pounds to hogs selling for between $8.00 and $12.00 per hundred.

COUNTY AGENT SERVICE TO BE MADE STATE-WIDE

By November 1, County Agent service will be provided every county in the State of Missouri, including 38 Counties which heretofore have been without this extension service of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. Completion of the County Agent system will make it possible for Missouri to receive full benefit from $281,000 provided for this State by the Smith-Lever law and other congressional acts, should this amount be matched, dollar for dollar, by State appropriations.

The completed system does not provide an individual agent for each separate county, nor will this be possible for some time to come. Little Journeys in Americana

By LESTER B. COLBY

An Unusual Indian

JAMES B. FINLEY emigrated to Northwest Territory in 1796 as a child with his parents. He lived among the Indians for more than seventy years. He became a preacher and worked long and tirelessly at the almost hopeless job of rescuing the red men of that day from savagery.

Among the Indians he was known as Rah-Wah-Wah or "The Old Chief." In the evening time of his life he wrote a book, a sort of memoir of his years on the frontier. I have never seen but two copies of this book and I possess one of them.

In the book he pictures some of the remarkable personalities he knew among the Indians. One character especially intrigues me. The man was known as Captain Shigser. He must have been a most unusual sort of Indian. Too, he had an unusual sort of wife.

I feel that I can do no better than to let Finley describe him. I quote:

"He was among the handsomest, best made, and, I think, the proudest man I ever saw. He was remarkable for his entire abstinence from all intoxicating drinks, or mingling with the company of any Indians when drinking. He was married to a squaw, half white, said to be the daughter of General Butler.

"She was a beautiful woman. Her skin was not dark; and her large, blue eyes; her long, black hair, and tall, well-proportioned person, with her rich and embroidered dress, gave her a magnificent appearance.

"He was dressed in the finest broadcloth, made in the fashion of the Indian costume, with thirty silver half-moons hanging on his breast and down his back. His headband was filled with silver bobs, and his linen bosom was stuck full of silver brooches; his belt was of the finest and best of wampum, and interwoven with beads and porcupine quills; his leggins were fringed, and filled with silver bobs, and beautifully decorated with horse-hair, dyed red; his moccasins were lined with green silk and ornamented with porcupine quills. All they had was in perfect keeping.

"His tomahawk blade, pipe, and handle, and his rifle barrel and stock were inlaid with silver; and their horses were of the best kind; and all their equipage, blankets and everything about their camp were in the same style. They did not pitch their tent close to the other Indians and very seldom associated with them.

"I have given this description to show, that even in savage life, there are great distinctions in their habits and ruling passions. I do not know what became of this couple but I should not wonder if they both fell a prey to savage envy, for those drunken Indians did not like them.

"They said, 'Too much proud.'

"I never knew but two other Indians but would drink and become intoxicated at times—the one was a Mohawk, and the other a Seneca."

Compare Shigser with Billy Wyandott and his squaw, Betty. Betty and Billy used to get lordly drunk and knock each other about. They would shove each other into the fire, club each other, slash at each other and at times would have murdered each other but for interference.

Finley describes a general debauch in which Billy and Betty participated. He wrote:

"This was an awful scene for a sober man to look upon. Here were encamped between two and three hundred Indians, and one-third, if not one-half, drunk; men and women raving maniacs, singing, dancing, fighting, stabbing and tomahawking one another——and there was the rumseller watering their whisky till it was not strong grog, and selling it for four dollars a gallon—his hired men gathering up all the skins and furs, then their silver trinkets, earbobs, armbands, halfmoons, silver crosses and brooches—giving a gill of grog for a dozen silver brooches—then their guns, tomahawks, and blankets, till they were literally stripped naked, and three or four were killed and wounded.

"The reader may set what estimate, he pleases, or call it by what name; yet, if there ever was a greater robber, or a meaner thief, or a dirtier murderer, than these rum-sellers, he is yet to be seen.'"

Finley records, however, that Billy and Betty finally "quit the bottle," became teetotalers, and lived to a ripe old age. Billy was blind for ten years before he died.

These old books are yellowed with years. They are strangely interesting. Much of their content is heavily written. They run to long paragraphs and many commas and semicolons. But they paint, nevertheless some remarkable pictures, some beautiful cameos.

Ford Digs Two Mile Tunnel for A Billion Gallons of Water a Day

NEARLY a billion gallons of water a day—more than is used by the cities of Detroit, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Washington combined—will be the capacity of a huge tunnel now nearing completion at the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, Michigan.

The tunnel will replace the present water intake system which supplies the Ford plants with 500,000,000 gallons a day. At the same time the company is remodeling its power house to greatly increase the power output. Both improvements, costing several million dollars, are being made to enlarge the production facilities of the Ford plant.

Sixty Feet Under Ground

In constructing the waterway, the largest of its kind ever undertaken by a single business concern, the engineers are burrowing sixty feet under ground for a distance of two and a fifth miles. They have gone under main highways, railroads, street car tracks, bridges, a cemetery and a creek.

One of the most difficult tasks was that of tunneling under Baby Creek at a point which is crossed by a railroad bridge and where also a large sewer is under construction by the city of Detroit. The piles that provide the foundation for the bridge and those driven by the company constructing the sewer formed a network on each side of the creek. It was the task of the Ford engineers to burrow under the creek, sewer and bridge, going between the piles without striking or weakening them.

Boring of the tunnel is accomplished by means of a shield—a large steel cylinder fourteen feet long and twenty-one feet in outside diameter with a solid steel shell or skin two and a fourth inches thick. This shield has a bulkhead which is made fast near the front end. There are four openings through which the mud streams, like toothpaste from a tube, as the shield is shoved forward by twenty powerful hydraulic jacks.

When the shield has been pushed forward sufficiently concrete blocks two and a half feet wide and five feet long, each weighing 3,430 pounds, are placed to form a ring around the circumference of the tunnel. One of them acts as a keystone so that the lining of concrete, which is eighteen inches thick, withstands the pressure of the earth. After this steel forms are set up and filled with concrete to form a solid inner lining which is also eighteen inches thick.

The present intake system of the Ford plant has a capacity of 500,000,000 gallons a day. The new tunnel will be able to carry 912,000,000 gallons.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

On receipt of his ballot the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the voting booths so provided, and shall prepare his ballot for voting in the following manner: Should the voter desire to vote a "straight" party ticket he shall place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below the party name. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates on more than one party ticket, by voting what is commonly called a "split ticket" he may place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below one party name and mark cross (X) marks in the squares at the left of the names of candidates on other tickets for whom he wishes to vote. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates whose name or names do not appear on the printed ballot he may do so by drawing a line through the printed name of candidate for such office, and writing below such canceled name the name of the person for whom he desires to vote, and placing a cross mark in the square at the left of such name. The squares so marked shall take precedence over the cross marked in the circle. Where there are two or more candidates for like office in a group a cross (X) mark in the square to the left of a candidate's name, automatically votes against the candidate whose name appears within the same horizontal lines in the column under the circle in which appears the cross (X) mark unless the voter indicates another candidate to be voted against by drawing a line through such candidate name. All candidates of the party whose circle is marked shall be counted as voted for excepting where squares are crossed preceding the names of the candidates in other columns; if two or more candidates for the same office are thus designated, neither shall be counted. If the cross (X) is not placed in the circle immediately below the party name at the head of the column, but does appear in the squares opposite the various candidates' names, then only these names shall be counted for, and none other. A cross (X) mark is any line crossing any other line at any angle within the voting space, and no ballot shall be declared void because a cross (X) mark therein is irregular in form. It shall not be lawful to deface or tear a ballot in any manner nor to erase any printed name (except as provided above in this section,) figure, word or letter therefrom, nor to erase any mark made thereon by such voter, nor inclose in the folded ballot any other paper or any article. If the voter deface or tear a ballot, or wrongly mark the name or make an erasure therein, he may obtain one additional ballot on returning to the ballot clerk the one so defaced or wrongly marked. A ballot placed in the ballot box without any mark shall not be counted. Ballots shall be counted only for the person for whom the marks thereon are applicable; when a voter shall place a mark against two or more names for the same office, and only one candidate is to be chosen for the office none of the candidates shall be deemed to have been voted for and the ballots shall not be counted for either such candidate. Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his ballot in such a manner as to conceal his marks thereon. He shall mark his ballot without undue delay. He shall then hand the ballot to the judge of election selected to take ballots, who shall number the ballot and deposit it in the ballot box. The voter shall quit and leave said enclosed place as soon as possible.

Some of the Many Reasons Why Proposition No. 4 Should Be Defeated!

FROM THE

of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

Tudsday, October 28th

WORKER'S COMPENSATION INSURANCE

Of all the propositions submited to the voters of Missouri for their judgment at the election on November 4, the one of least merit is Proposition No. 4, which would create a State insurance fund for workmen's compensation. This would give to the State a monopoly of such insurance, prohibit the issuance of policies by private insurance companies and place this businses under the complete control of a political bureau.

There is, in the first place, no substantial justification for any change in the present laws governing insurance for workmen's compensation. Since the compensation law was enacted, it has been generally speaking, fairly and satisfactorily administered. It has given this State a long needed system of workmen's compensation for injuries sustained in industrial labors, in amounts that are reasonable and just, and at rates that are strictly regulated by the State Commission. As a matter of fact, the success of this Missouri law has been rather remarkable and eminently gratifying.

Yet, now it is proposed to make a change in this law, that would radically alter its entire basis of administration and set up a great political organization that would monopolize this form of insurance, and, we are profoundly convinced, seriously endanger its effectiveness as a beneficial agency in the interests of labor. The Legislature of Missouri has given careful consideration to this proposal and has properly rejected it as unsound and undesirable. But now the people of the State are asked to pass this very long, highly complicated and decidedly revolutionary measure, without any study of it—for detailed study of such a complex proposal by the whole people is out of the question—and wihtout an opportunity to change a word of it.

There is no good reason to believe that this change would really benefit either employes or employers. Claims are made for it, to be sure, but their validity is highly doubtful. They are not justified by the experience of the seven States that have adopted this monopolistic form of State insurance. One of these, Ohio, is held up as a notable example of success in State insurance, but the experience of the other six States is not paraded. As a matter of fact, none of their laws has worked as satisfactorily as the Missouri law, and the comparative success of even the law of Ohio is debatable. There is not the slightest doubt in our mind that the Ohio system, as well as the others, will eventually break down, and workers, as well as taxpayers, will lose by their failure. A political bureau, subject as it must be to frequent changes of direction and to continuous political influences, can never be depended upon to maintain satisfactory standards in an enterprise that properly belongs in the field of private business.

This proposal is simply and solely an experiment in State Socialism, an entering wedge for further experiments in that region of political theory. It is highly objectionable on that account, for nothing except Communism can be so dangerous to American principles, so destructive to American enterprise and individual opportunity as the advance of Socialism in this country. But aside from this fundamental and complete objection, there is not the slightest valid reason for setting aside the present law and substituting another of any character. The workmen's compensation law is doing well for all concerned. Let it alone. Proposition No. 4 should be overwhelmingly defeated.

1 PUTS the State in Business.
Proposition No. 4 proposes to PUT THE STATE INTO THE INSURANCE BUSINESS. This is the opening wedge of Socialism and Government ownership. If this proposition is adopted, campaigns will be started to have the State go into other lines of business.

2 CREATES A STATE MONOPOLY, thereby eliminating Insurance Companies and their agents.

3 GIVES UNLIMITED POWER and authority to Compensation Commission.

4 GIVES Compensation Commission power to make unlimited number of jobs, thereby creating a powerful political machine.

5 GIVES Compensation Commission UNLIMITED POWER to appoint a preferred list of doctors and hospitals without approval of either employer or employee and gives no right of appeal from its decision.

6 GIVES Compensation Commission UNLIMITED POWER to make rates, to refuse to insure and to cancel policies without any right of appeal and without any supervision or control.

7 GIVES Compensation Commission UNLIMITED POWER to reinsure with any Company it may select without supervision. This is the greatest opportunity for fraud and graft ever proposed in this State.

8 GIVES Compensation Commission UNLIMITED POWER to determine the "ability" of employer to carry own insurance without limiting or defining the meaning of the word "ability" and without giving the employer any right of appeal to the Courts.

9 THE payment of compensation to the injured workman is so slowed up by RED TAPE that he cannot be paid on time.

10 WILL INCREASE GENERAL TAXES BECAUSE:

(a) ABOLISHES taxes now paid by insurance companies for school and general revenue purposes;

(b) IT makes no provision for any deficit created by the Compensation Commission and in such case the legislature would have to make appropriations to pay deficit, THEREBY RAISING TAXES GENERALLY;

(c) IT may require the erection of a building to house the multitude of job holders created by this new Bureau;

(d) IT COMPELS the State, Counties Cities, Town, School Districts and all other political subdivisions to carry insurance in the State Fund. LOCAL TAXATION WOULD BE INCREASED TO PAY INSURANCE PREMIUMS.

(Cut this out and take with you to the polls)

New Methods Adopted In Chilean Industry

Production of Nitrate Fertilizer in Sun-Parched Desert Is Speeded Up.

AMERICAN engineers are helping to revolutionize an industry up in the sun-parched mountains of northern Chile.

The application of modern methods of mass production is making the Chilean nitrate industry a model of 20th century efficiency, according to Conrado Rios Gallardo, former Chilean Secretary of State, who was a recent visitor to the United States before becoming his country's ambassador to Peru.

With the elimination of waste and the use of labor-saving machinery, a marked decrease, he said, has been made in the cost of producing the fertilizer under the difficult conditions found in the arid desert.

"Never before has the nitrate industry occupied as strong a position as it does today," declared Ambassador Gallardo. "Not only have the mechanical processes been vastly improved, but the production has been stabilized to the benefit of both the producers and the consumers of this fertilizer."

The Chilean Government has taken an energetic part in the improvement of the industry. It has aided the progress through legislative enactment and has encouraged new American processes for mining and refining the fertilizer.

At present nearly one-half of the total capital invested in the industry is owned in the United States, pointed out the Ambassador. American farmers are also the largest users of Chilean nitrate, their consumption during the past five years averaging about 1,000,000 tons annually.

The nitrate fertilizer was first shipped to this country in 1830. It has been used ever since, and today it occupies the honor of being the oldest of the commercial fertilizers.

MISSOURI LEADS IN ABOLISHING CROSSINGS

The Missouri State Highway system is far in advance of all other State road systems in eliminating railroad grade crossings. The Highway Commission's policy of safeguarding the public against tragic railroad crossing accidents is one of the outstanding examples of forethought and good engineering that is creating universal praise for the Missouri system.

When the Centennial Road Law was passed in 1921, there were 731 railroad grade crossings on the roads designated as the State highway system. Careful relocation of roads has eliminated 350 of these grade crossings.

In the past eight years, the State Highway Department has co-operated with the railroads, in building 170 grade separations, underpass and overhead crossings, leaving only 200 grade crossings on the entire system of 7640 miles. When the State road system is completed in 1934 there will be less than 100 grade crossings on the State system.

An example of what grade separations mean to the traveling public is illustrated in the construction of U S. 66 between St. Louis and Springfield. Formerly, there were 33 grade crossings on this much traveled highway. By careful relocation of the roadways, every grade-crossing has been done away with, and three overhead bridges carry the highway traffic over intersecting railroads The average cost of grade separations in Missouri is approximately $20,000 each; one-half of which is paid by the railroad companeis.

WARN FARMERS AGAINST FALSE CLAIMS FOR NEW GRAIN SORGHUM 'GROHOMA'

Farmers should not accept the claims advanced for a new grain sorghum, called Grohoma, which has been offered at prices twenty to fifty times those of well-known and adapted varieties, the U. S. Department of Agriculture warns. The claims in regard to the origin and value are sensational and inaccurate, sorghum specialists of the Bureau of Plant Industry say. There is no reliable evidence that Grohoma is superior to or will outyield other well-known varieties which have been tested and which may be recommended on the basis of experimental tests. Present information, says the Bureau, does not justify an exorbitant price for the seed of an almost unknown and untried crop.

It is also a good plan to clean up grass and weeds along fence rows, in ditches, and around the edges of the cotton fields

DANGEROUS SEASON FOR TRAFFIC ON HIGHWAYS

Motorists on Missouri highways are warned against traveling at a high rate of speed in the early evening at this season of the year, as this is corn husking time in the northern section, and cotton picking time in the southern part of the State.

Twilight comes early at this time of year and farmers are prone to stay in the fields until darkness drives them out on the road toward home, or the cotton gin mills. Big lumbering wagons filled with corn or cotton are on nearly every highway after sunset, and because few of them carry lights, they easily trap the fast traveling motorist who does not have his car under perfect control. Common judgment warns us to "Sacrific Speed for Safety" during October and November, when danger luks around every curve and over every hilltop.

Victorian Furniture Returns

KEEP anything long enough and it will probably return to fashion! Once more the truth of this familiar saying is proved. Victorian furniture has been despised and scorned for years—along with the golden oak and mission atrocities.

But now the nice old pieces in black walnut, shiny mahogany and rosewood are being resurrected from many attics. They often need refinishing and re-upholstering. And then they're placed pridefully in the living room, waxed to a satiny polish which was typical of furniture of that era, and treasured as heirlooms.

After all, it wasn't the furniture itself which made Victorian parlors an object of ridicule. It was the overcrowding, and the stuffy fussiness of the rooms. Much of the furniture was very graceful in line and curve. And the richly ornamental carving—often in floral, leaf, fruit or shell designs—has a quaint and lovely charm.

And this is certainly the proper time for its revival—now that "wasp waists" are returning and debutantes are once more wearing mitts and affecting the chignon style of hairdress! In dress fashions we are nearer mid-Victorianism than we have been for many years. And the furniture of that age makes a sympathetic background for these new-old styles.

Old parlor and bedroom "sets," as well as what-nots, tables and sideboards will probably be worth restoring. If the wood surfaces have become deeply marred and scratched during years of disuse, refinishing is desirable as a glossy, flawless polish is correct for furniture of that time.

To refinish—the old paint should be scraped off with the aid of a varnish remover and the surface then washed with turpentine or gasoline. A suitable oil stain or spirit varnish should be applied, followed by a coating of wax. Preserve the old finish, if at all possible, treating it with wax to bring out all its original beauty.

You probably won't wish to fill your rooms with antimacassers, papier-mache boxes, shells, crystal globes, wax fruit and carpets encrolled with cabbage-like roses in the true Victorian fashion! But several good pieces of Victorian furniture will add much charm and individuality to your home

Steps in Home Canning

By GRACE VIALL GRAY, Secretary,
National Canning Contest, Shenandoah, Iowa.

(No. 3)

After food products are properly prepared and pre-heated or pre-cooked, they are then ready to be packed into glass jars. All jars should be washed clean and kept in hot water until ready to use. After the food has been pre-heated or pre-cooked one should work quickly so that the food does not cool. Be sure to fill the jars completely full, with a sufficient proportion of liquid to solids to prevent too dense a pack. Sufficient water should be used so that it can flow freely in the jar. With such vegetables as corn and greens, which are solid foods, authorities advocate using half as much water as vegetables by weight. Water in which the vegetables were pre-cooked is added for the liquid, thus saving all the vitamin contents of the vegetable.

When the jar is opened the liquid is served with the vegetable or used in making a sauce. To every quart jar of vegetables, add 1 teaspoon of salt. Most vegetables are improved by the addition of some sugar. To corn, peas and tomatoes, add 1 tablespoon of sugar. To beets, add 1 teaspoon sugar to each quart jar. The sugar is added not primarily for its sweetening qualities, but to intensify and restore the vegetable's natural flavor.

When fruits and berries are packed into the jar, the syrup in which they are cooked is put into the jar together with the fruit.

In canning fruits it is advisable to prepare in advance the syrup which will be needed. The degree of concentration of the syrup recommended for different fruits varies and is designated as thin, medium and thick.

For thin syrup use 1 cup of sugar and 3 cups of water.

For medium syrup use 1 cup of sugar and 2 cups of water.

For thick syrup use 1 cup of sugar and 1 cup of water.

In each case the sugar and water are heated together and stirred carefully until the sugar is dissolved and the syrup brought to a boil. Fruit juice may be substituted for the water in the syrup with marked improvement in flavor.

IS YOUR ENTRY IN?

Prizes totaling $4,250 in cash, loving cups and ribbons, including a grand sweepstakes award of $600 in cash, are being offered to winners in the National Canning Contest, to be held at Shenandoah, Iowa, October 1. For free information and free baill-mason jar and entry blanks, write to Mrs. Gray at Shenandoah.

It is just as easy to pack fruit attractively as to pack it hit-or-miss. Illustrated here are good styles of fruit canning.

India: Superstitions

WE ARE likely to think of the American Indian as very brave. The truth is he was filled with a myriad of fears. He lived a life of never-ceasing superstitious terror. We are likely to think of him as a man of few words. Instead, when we look into his habits, we find him a chatterbox. Tongues of the Indians wagged endlessly about their campfires when they were among their own.

The Indian was fearful, ceaselessly fearful, because he lived in a world of a million spirits of every sort, some good, but most of them bad. Many of his pagan beliefs were amazing.

When an Ojibway woman buried her dead husband, she would run from the burial place in zig-zag fashion toward her home, dodging from tree to tree. Her object was to elude the spirit of the deceased. At sundown the whole village would set up a clamor of noise, rattling various things at hand, shaking the doors of the wigwams and creating a general hubbub. The idea was to frighten away the spirits.

Lakes were the abode of spirits. They lived in caves and caverns and strange shaped rocks. High mountains were wigwams in which gods lived. Smoke coming out of volcanoes were fires in the giant tepees of these gods. If a spring bubbled, that was the breathing of some spirit. Echoes were spirits mocking the one who called.

Everything that could not be explained was laid to the act of some god or spirit. So an epidemic would lead to incantations and offerings to the spirits. Belief in witchcraft was common and there are many instances of record showing that both men and women, convicted as witches or sorcerers, were put to death.

Among many tribes no one, not even the bravest warrior, dared leave the tepee or camp circle at night. They were literally afraid of the dark. It is said that there were tribes in the Hudson's Bay territory that were so terror-stricken of the darkness that they kept their fires burning all night and slept only in the daytime. The Mohawks would never leave their dwelling places at night except in groups, because of their fear of the darkness.

A crow was like a black cat—only much worse. Many an Indian expedition has been abandoned, the tribe turning back, because a crow sat and cawed in front of the line of march.

The Otoes believed in a dwarf people, about eighteen inches high, who killed any who came near them. The Shoshones had a legend of a tribe of imps, two feet high, naked and with a tail. They called them Ninumbees. The Choctaws knew of a race of diminutive people who rode swiftly in the moonlight on the backs of deer and sang magic songs. These mythical people were known as itallaboys.

Blackfeet worshiped demons with much ceremony and self-torture. They had to torment themselves without showing any sign of pain. Some tribes buried their dead children by the side of a trail in the hope that their spirits might enter the body of some woman passing. If this happened they would be born again.

The Dakotahs believed that when one became ill it was due to an animal spirit entering the body. A toothache was the work of a woodpecker's spirit. Dreams played an important part in their superstitions. They found cause to either fear or worship almost everything in nature. Some tribes worshiped the sun and the moon.

Peculiarly shaped stones, bits of copper or iron ore, fragments of quartz became heirlooms or amulets and sometimes were cherished in families for generations. Such things, regardless of bulk or weight, might be carted around from camp to camp for many years. Medicine bags became the reposing places of strange bits of junk.

Sometimes when a great chief died the mourners would cut off fingers and otherwise mutilate themselves. Again they might rip off patches of skin. Such actions are supposed to be due to a morbid fear and terror of death.

When a whirlpool in some stream sucked down a man, the Indians believed a devil reached up from his abode and grabbed the victim. If a man fell and was hurt, a demon of some sort tripped him.

Prior to the coming of the whites, it is claimed, no Indian had any conception of a Supreme Being. The Algonquin word, Manitou, was applied to gods in general. Most gods were evil. They were things to be overcome. They might be met in the form of almost anything—a toad, perhaps, or a worm, or a turtle. Many tribes especially feared to kill a rattlesnake. When they met a rattlesnake they would gather around it, praise it, speak of it in high terms, call it grandfather and pledge their word that they would protect it.

Thus almost everything that came into an Indian's life, either animate or inanimate, might be haunted or a devil or a god. Everything was a "sign" to him and the most of his signs were bad ones. Compared with the Indian as he was, the southern negro is almost superstition-free.

Clipping Coupons A Thousand Miles Away

A THOUSAND miles away or so, perhaps at this very moment a gentleman is seated in a safety deposit vault busily clipping coupons from a number of bonds. Tomorrow this same individual—and thousands like him—will receive a dividend check through the mail.

The coupons represent interest returns on money loaned a large chain store syndicate. The dividend check represents his share in the profits of the selfsame organization.

We have no quarrel with these stocks or bonds; very likely they are a fine investment. But—it is also very likely that this chain syndicate has an outlet in Sikeston. Perhaps two or three. And as far as contributing to Sikeston's prosperity, directly or indirectly, these stores are a "total loss."

But what about the INDEPENDENT retail merchant? He borrows money at the LOCAL bank. Interest on the loan is not paid to bond-holders a thousand miles away, but swells the amount of money the bank has available for commercial loans to OTHER LOCAL BUSINESS MEN. Profits are not paid to widely scattered stockholdere, but increase the spending power of local residents, making them a greater potential buying power of goods sold by other Sikeston firms. Money is thus kept circulating at home. Public improvements are possible. If only for these economic reasons, the INDEPENDENT Sikeston merchant deserves your support!

WOULD MODERNIZE MISSOURI AUTO CODE

A campaign to modernize Missouri's motor vehicle code by establishing a State Highway Patrol, a Driver's License and passing a Safety-Responsibilty law by the next session of the Legislature, has been launched by the Automobile Club of Missouri.

"The three fundamental features that in our opinion will be vital factors in bringing about street and highway safety ni this State will be enactment of a State Highway Patrol, a Driver's License law and a Safety-Responsibilty law.

"Briefly, the recommendations concerning these three features are as follows:

"1—A State Highway Patrol to be composed of 157 officers and men providing a patrol for at least each 50 miles of our State Highway System. Study of results obtained in other States shows this to be the most practical and most efficient each beat of 50 miles being as much as a man can cover properly.

"Their duties would be limited to enforcement of motor vehicle laws protection of the highways and anything incident to that work, because by reason of that fact such a force could be paid ,under the constitutional amendment of 1928, from presen automobile license fees and gasoline tax. The income from those sources will be ample to take care of all requirements of road building and maintenance, finance requirements of the road bond issues and this patrol force. No additional tax would be levied.

"3—A Safety-Responsibility law will require a license for every driver of an automobile subject to revocation or suspension for major offenses such as driving while intoxicated leaving the scene of an accident reckless driving, or having frequent accidents. Such a license to be issued for a nominal fee.

"3—A Safety-Respnosibility law similar to that passed in that last few years in New York and several Eastern States, Calfornia and, which after an exhaustive investigation by a government commission has just gone into effect in the Province of Ontario, Canada. This is a move to require the reckless and irresponsible drive to deposit with the State evidence of financial responsibility before he is permitted to drive his car within the State".

BAPTIST GIRLS WILL CONDUCT BAKE SALE

A group of 15-year-old girls of the First Baptist church will conduct a bake sale Saturday, November 1, at the L. T. Davey Plumbing Shop. Fresh cakes, pies and candies will be sold from early morning until the supply is exhausted. Prospective buyers are urged to come during the morning hours to secure Sunday sweetmeats.

MURDER VICTIM PLACED ON RAILROAD TRACKS

Bismarck, Mo., October 29.—Authorities today were investigating the slaying of an unidentified man whose body was placed on the Missouri Pacific Railroad right-of-way a mile south of Vineland, where it was decapitated by a Missouri Pacific train yesterday. The body thus far has not been identified. Coroner Gibson said death was caused by a stab wound several hours before the body was placed on the tracks to create impression the train had killed the man.

Bill Smith, Jr., and sister, Mrs. Charles Berthe, with Mrs. Runke, of New Madrid, were in Sikeston on business, Tuesday.

Development On The Political Battle Front

Experience proves again that time brings changes in most everything, including political battle lines. The Democrats started their County campaign under the slogan, "Boost your own stock and let the Republicans do their own advertising!" The Republican County Committee and candidates, seem to have started their's under the battle cry, "Advertise the faults of the Democrats and maybe the voters will forget some of ours, including Mr. Hoover!" Anyway, the Republican campaigners started out complaining about most everything and everybody with a Democratic complexion, whether a candidate, officer or whatnot.

DEMOCRATS CHANGE FRONT

Despite continued assaults, the Democrats ignored this "mud-slinging" and refused to indulge in personalities, until these Republican speakers grew bold to state that the Democrats were just afraid to try to reply to these charges. The Democrats seeing that silence was no longer a virtue, then challenged these Republican Campaigners to a joint public debate of these charges, and a comparison of records. That challenge still stands, but has not been accepted to date.

AND HOW

We calculated as how it would save a lot of time and wind for both sides, and enlighten the voters in a big way, to give them the benefit of the joint intelligence, information, and, oratory of both sides, all at one sitting; that both sides together could, and likely would, hand out sufficient information at the first "meetin' " to settle two or three elections; and then both sides could adjourn this campaign and all go fishing. But the Republican speakers declined our invitation with thanks, and wrote us up in the papers. However, our replies and comparison of records, have brought a number of changes in the Republican Campaigners' battle lines.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGNERS CHANGE FRONT

1. One of their early campaign charges was that our County Clerk's books were not kept to date and his office was badly managed.

(a) When they were reminded that no grand jury had ever found anything wrong,

(b) That the last grand jury had highly commended Mr. Smith and his records,

(c) That Mr. Smith was inviting the public to visit his office and see for themselves, and

(d) That Mr. Pearman's (his opponent) oversights, when he was County Clerk, had cost the County several hundred dollars, that charge against Mr. Smith was dropped.

2. Charge number two was that the County Court had hired lawyers to do the work of the prosecuting attorney in the County Bond suit and the Road Refund matters. When it was pointed out:

(a) That the prosecuting attorney is not shirking any work or duty in either of these cases, but appeared and did his utmost in the County Bond suit, and is doing all he can in the Road Refund matter, but was simply furnished some legal assistance in these important cases,

(b) That it would have been bad business policy to risk such large amounts of the people's money on just the prosecuting attorney, when the defendants were represented by a large corps of the ablest lawyers in the State,

(c) That every County in this section of the State had hired legal assistance for their prosecuting attorneys in these road cases, and

(d) That Mr. Roger Bailey, Republican candidate for prosecuting attorney, and City attorney of the City of Sikeston, has the same obligation to represent his city in all legal matters that the prosecuting attorney has to represent the County, and that Mr. Bailey has had legal assistance at the expense of the city in every important case the City has had during his term of office, that charge was abandoned, and Mr. Bailey himself now admits in his published statement last week:

"It was proper for Mr. Montgomery to have help in this particular suit (County Bond Suit). It was burdened with too much responsibility for Mr. Montgomery or any other one lawyer".

While Mr. Bailey does not mention the Road Refund case in this statement, since a much larger amount of the people's money is involved in that case, than was at stake in the County Bond Suit.

3. After admitting that it was proper to hire legal assistance in these cases, they next said that Mr. Lucas was being paid too much by the County Court. When it was pointed out:

(a) That the County Court settled with Mr. Lucas in the Bond case for 15%, which was 10% less than than the school boards themselves had agreed to pay him,

(b) That Bailey & Bailey (Roger and his father) had charged the Sikeston School District, which they represented in the bond suit, 25%, while Mr. Lucas had settled with all the districts he represented for 15%,

(c) That Bailey's & Bailey's charge in that case was about three times the per cent Mr. Lucas was to receive in the Road Refund case, and

(d) That every county in this section of the State had hired legal assistance in these road matters, and on less favorable terms to the County than Mr. Lucas' contract called for,

that charge was likewise abandoned, and in Mr. Bailey's published statement, he further admitted:

"That Mr. Lucas was employed to help him (the prosecuting attorney in the School Bond case) is without just criticism or objection".

Then they said that Judge Brady, Republican County Judge, did not consent to the Road Refund contract with Mr. Lucas. When they found out that not a single one of the eight or more persons present in the court room when that matter was passed upon, but who says that Mr. Brady not only voted for this contract, but expressed himself as highly pleased with it, this ceased to be a talking point.

5. Then they said some money was transferred to some drainage district. But, they found out that George Arnold, Republican County Treasurer, was the prime mover in that transfer and the one who actually made the transfer. So that ceased to sound good.

6. They also said that Mr. Lucas gets free rent and library. Just why they jump on Mr. Lucas, we don't know, as he has never held office and is not a candidate. But, as to this charge, they found out that Mr. Lucas was furnishing the Probate office, free of charge, a Probate Clerk and stenographer, which amounts to many times his office rent, was himself attending to Probate duties in the absence of the Probate Judge, and was also furnishing the Probate office more library than the Probate office was furnishing him. So that charge passed out.

7. They also said some county funds were short of cash. But later admitted that they had just forgotten that these were hard times, with lots of delinquent taxes.

8. They also assailed the records of the Democrats and praised their own, but, when later comparison didn't sound so good, they dropped this.

So one by one these Republican Campaigners have abandoned all of their original charges, but now Mr. Roger Bailey, Republican candidate for Prosecuting Attorney, gets back to the County Bond case, and says that he has discovered an entirely new fly in the ointment, and he describes it thusly, in his published statement last week:

"The criticism lies in this. Mr. Montgomery was prosecuting attorney and Mr. Lucas was employed by the County Court. With this agreement they should have gone on and rendered their services in this case. They should not have brought in the school districts from all over the County and made contracts with those who would agree to it for additional attorney fees to be paid by these individual districts".

Tut! Tut! now, Roger, and piffle! You surely can't be serious. Why Roger, you came to that school board meeting yourself, and tried to get all of these school districts to employ you and your Father (Bailey & Bailey)—tried to contract with them for the very "Additional Attorney fees", as you express it, that you now say is all wrong and subject to criticism. And you were obligated to appear in the case, as you suggest. And you would have been a party to whatever wrong there was about it, except that these school boards turned your proposition for employment down, and voted to hire Mr. Lucas. What was there wrong about Mr. Lucas being employed that would have been different if Bailey & Bailey's proposition had been accepted? And Roger, if there was anything at all wrong about it, you have been in on the secret since that meeting in May, 1928. How come, that you wait until you are a candidate, to write us up? You didn't even think to mention this in your 1928 campaign speeches, when it was fresh. Roger, we honestly think that you are one of the finest boys in Scott County, and we call you Roger rather than the formal Mr. Bailey because we like you. But now just between friends, don't you sorter feel like you have gone a long way in this campaign in trying to get votes by finding fault with somebody?

Surely there was nothing wrong in each school district and fund involved, paying its proportional part of the expenses of this suit, and the matter was handled and settled on exactly that basis. You speak of "Additional attorney fees", thereby insinuating that Mr. Lucas made double charges—that is that he got the county court to pay him 15% of the total sum and then got each district "Who would agree to it", as you express it, to pay him 15% of their part. Such is not the case as you can find by a little figuring. Mr. Lucas simply charged each district and fund involved (Sikeston district excepted, since it had its own attorneys, Bailey & Bailey) 15% of the sum recovered for them.

Your published statement indicates that you think the County should have paid all of the expenses of this suit, with no part borne by the school and drainage districts to which more than 91 per cent of this money belonged. Surely the county should not have been called upon to bear all of the expense out of its less than 9 per cent of the sum involved.

In your statement, you also seem to contend, and we agree to this, that though over 91 per cent of this money belonged to the school and drainage districts, still, since this bond was taken by the county, and this money was in the county treasury, the county court had full legal control of this whole matter and, without consulting the school boards or anyone else, could have hired such additional lawyers as they saw fit on such terms as they thought best. But, we submit that the county court and prosecuting attorney should be commended rather than criticised, for calling in and consulting the school boards and following their wishes. Mr. Lucas had no more to do with calling this meeting that you did, Roger, despite your plain insinuation to the contrary. And these school board members, and not the county court, provided for hiring this additional counsel, and selected Mr. Lucas and fixed his term of employment. And, in doing so, they did not, as you say, just contract with Mr. Lucas for "Additional attorney's fees" but each school district was merely obligating itself to pay its proportional part of the total expense. And Mr. Lucas was employed with the distinct understanding that he was to employ additional legal help and pay them out of his per cent, which he did, and the valuable help of Attorneys Wammack and Welborn of Bloomfield, would not have been otherwise secured.

WE FEEL COMPLIMENTED

We believe that everyone, who has followed the present campaign, will agree that the Republican County candidates and committee, have been willing and industrious, industrious, in trying to find and advertise all of our faults. Their admitted failure in that regard is, we modestly submit, substantial evidence that our record is good, and is trustworthy assurance that we will endeavor to merit your continued confidence and support.

LEGUME GROWTH TO BE STUDIED IN S. E. MO

A survey of legume production is to be made of farms in certain sections of Scott and Cape Girardeau Counties during the week of November 3 to 8 according to Ide P. Trotter, Extension Specialist in Field Crops. It is hoped to determine for these areas, first: What acreages of the different legume crops are now grown and what changes in these acreages have been made recently second: What practices or treatments are used in the attempt to make legume production more successful and third: To determine, as far as possible, what sources of information have been helpful in either introducing these crops or making their production more successful.

This work is being undertaken by the Agricultural Extension Service of the Missouri College of Agriculture in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture Division of Extension Studies. The purpose is to measure the results of extension activities in order to make this service to the farmers more efficient.

Mr. Trotter, who has been in charge of the Soils and Crops Extension Work in these counties for a number of years, has been conferring with County Agents A. J. Renner and E. T. Mallinckrodt with reference to advance plans for these studies.

"Farmers in the areas selected will be visited and asked about their acreages and practices in legume production", Trotter explained. "We wish to make the nature of this study clear to everyone interested or concerned. The information asked for on the farms visited is only that about practices in legume growing and related facts about the farm. No use or publicity will be made of facts given about individual farms. All individual records will be confidential. Only average results from a large number of farms in the area will be used". said Trotter "to get a reliable picture of actual conditions. This will prove of value in planning future extension work".

"If these facts are known and appreciated by the farmers, they will be glad to welcome the man who calls on them and give him the information needed. The work is in no way commercial and the farmer has no obligation of any kind in connection with the study. His help in getting the facts will aid the Missouri College of Agriculture in serving the farmers of Missouri".

W. B. A. MEMBERS HAVE EVENING OF FUN

An intra-club contest in the local Woman's Benefit Association provided an unusual entertainment during the regular meeting last Monday night. Two rival factions in the organizations, named Diamonds and Stars, respectively, tried to outdo each other in presenting entertainment features. Sixty members and a number of guests enjoyed the evening.

The "Stars" first presented a play, "Back To School". Twenty pupils under the direction of "teacher", Mrs Birdie Fox, were given tests in read in' and 'rithmetic.

A "bum" band, under the direction of Mrs. Belle Morrison, proved to be the surprise stunt provided by the "Diamond" faction.

Costumes and instruments in the strange band were suited to the occasion.

Refreshments consisted of candy bars given by the Diamonds and lemonade given by the Stars. The lemonade was made from the juice of lemons donated for the occasion However, each doner had counted the seeds and paid a penny for each. The proceeds were turned over to the flower fund, swelling it to $1.62 Points are allowed for these affairs and for gaining new members. The Diamonds are slated as favorites.

A Hallowe'en party, planned for Friday night, has been cancelled by the organization. The Junior W. B A party is scheduled to be held in the I. O. O. F. Hall this Thursday night.

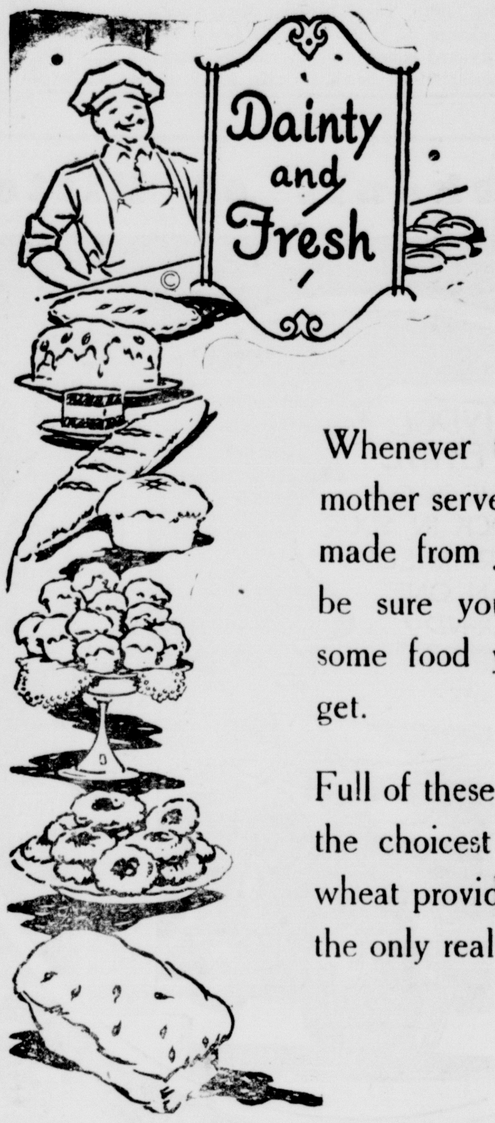

BROWN-LAIR WEDDING A SECRET FOR ONE YEAR

Parents of Wesley Lair, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Lair, of Charleston and the parents of Miss Dorothy Brown, 18, of Blytheville, Ark., learned Wednesday of the marriage of their children about one year ago

A hint dropped by the former Miss Brown, who is at present attending Southeast Missouri Teachers' College at Cape Girardeau, led to a search of the records in Blytheville.

Wesley Lair is now an understudy in the Waggener Funeral Home, St Louis. He will be associated with his father and brother in the furniture and undertaking business later.

Speaker Longworth finally has discovered what caused the present hard times: It was the damned Democrats and the more damnable Republican Insurgents who, in their zeal to prevent wholesale highway robbery of the people, fought and delayed the passage of the Grundy traiff measure. IT'S MY LONG LOST CANARY SAYS IRA

Bread cast upon waters is coming back many fold to Ira Shuffit, champion hard luck truckster who recently broke a long mirror, paid for a broken door on his truck, and traded a canary bird for a trucking job. That's how the story really started, over that canary.

The bottom dropped out of the bird cage at a very unfortunate moment, and Ira staged a hasty retreat. Thursday morning, Ira received a ventilated package. It contained a small screech owl one of the big-eyed, brown feathered birds credited with much wisdom and night work. 'It's my canary, come home to roost", reflected Ira as he fondled his newfound pet.

We are fortunate to have Mrs Burch of Springfield with us for our annual school. Mrs. Burch has had a great deal of practical experience in her line of work. She served as director in her own church and saw her unions grow from two to fourteen.

We have invited the Southern half of the Charleston Association to cooperate with us and make this an Associational Training School. We will get double credit for it. Presidents, let us see that our unions are one hundred per cent. The annual B Y. P. U. Training School will be held November 9-16.

Winans Revival

Evangelist W. G. Winans is to begin a revival meeting at the First Baptist Church of Sikeston, November 16. Brother Winans has been to Sikeston and most of us know him We ought to have a good meeting but a great deal of the success of the meting depends on the local church membership. If we went a true revival, let's begin now to get ready.

OUST CARROLLTON PASTOR

The First Baptist Church congregation at Carrollton voted Sunday to declare the pulpit vacant, owing to refusal on the part of Rev. W. W Woodson to observe a quarantine order following the death of Sheriff Schnapp's 7-year-old daughter from infantile paralysis, and Woodson's subsequent arrest and a twenty-four hour incarceration in jail. Woodson is a portege of the notroious Rev. Frank Norris of Ft. Worth, Texas and a self-styled prophet of the immediate second coming of Christ.

The Young People's Missionary Socieyt of the Methodist Church are giving a Hallowe'en party at the home of Mrs. C. E. Felker Thursday night. This same Society of young folks is preparing their usual box of food and clothing for Kingdom House.

URGE STATE POLICE FORCE

Columbia, October 29.—Faced with a noticeable increase in farm thievery, Missouri farmers can hardly be blamed for taking the law into their own hands for self defense unless the State comes to their rescue with adequate police protection, declared Asbury Roberts, manager of The Missouri Ruralist Protective Service before a Farmers' Week audience here today, in an address urging the creation of a State Police Force.

"In practically every community thieves are making raids upon farm property and the Sheriff is almost helpless in his efforts to apprehend the guilty parties. The same system of law enforcement is in vogue as existed 50 years ago. Peace officers are handicapped by restriction to county boundaries; the fee basis of compensation creates a natural tendency for an officer to devote his time to the more lucrative and less hazardous duties of his office by serving civil processes. Similarly, his equipment in most cases is as comparable to modern crime paraphernalia as the old horse-and-buggy conveyances are antiquated beside high-powered motor cars.

"State Police officers in Canada Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maine and a score of other States are trained men. Besides being physically and mentally fit, they are subjected to rigid training before responsibilities are placed upon them. Well grounded in the law of evidence, the record of these officers shows more than 75 per cent of the arrests result in conviction. According to the Missouri Crime Survey report, more than 57 per cent escape conviction.

The velvet bean caterpillar, which is developing an appetite for soybeans in Louisiana and parts of Texas, can be controlled by dusting with sodium fluosilicate, acording to the United States Department of Agriculture. A light brand of sodium fluosilicate, analyzing about 80 per cent pure, will be effective when applied during the insects' larval stage.

LAIR BUYS ROSE FURNITURE STOCK

The stock, fixtures and accounts of the Rose Furniture Company were purchased Wednesday by The Lair Company of Charleston, when the assets were auctioned off to the highest bidder under the order from Judge Joe L. Moore, Referee in Bankruptcy for this district, F. D. Lair, Sr., who made the purchasing bid when asked as to the future course of the business here, replied, "The first move will be to replenish, rearrange and remark the stock from one end to the other with a view of giving Southeast Missourians a taste of real furniture and range bargains. We purchased this stock at an extremely low figure and are going to sell it on a similar basis. I am not in a position just now to give further details but promise that information of great interest to furniture buyers will be forthcoming soon in the way of advertising. The store will be continued in present quarters until further notice, but will be closed for several days in order that we may get ready for the special occasion".

OCTOBER ATTENDANCE LARGEST IN HISTORY OF SIKESTON SCHOOLS

According to data compiled in the office of the Superintendent, the average daily atendance of children in Grade and High School departments for the month of October was 1163 The figure exceeds any previous average attendance.

The total enrollment is also slightly in excess of any previous figure. There were enrolled in all departments of the school system 1152 white children and 109 colored, making a total of 1261, or about twenty-five more than the peak enrollment last year.

Mrs. Bert Engram entertained on Wednesday night with a Hallowe'en party for her children, Nora, Franklin and Vance. A large group of school chums and neighborhood children attended.

NO LESS THAN NOTHING

A fellow casually remarked to me the other day that he "would rather hear somebody say "look at that cowardly devil run" than for them to stand over him and say, "doesn't he look natural". Another supplied that he "would rather be a coward all of his life than a corpse five minutes".

Did you know that—

Matthews lost the football and basketball championships each by one point to Gideon High School?

Matthews hasn't been able to get a scheduled football game with Sikeston High and reasons that they shouldn't haven't been presented to us

$120,000 Painting Is Found To Be a Fake. Edward J. Holmes, director of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, will probably have a new and complicated case of "painter's colic" after getting hooked for $120,000 with a new painting on an old canvas.

The Head of the Neet Hair Removing Company Loses Wife by Divorce. Probably he carried a bottle of his hair remover out to dinner to take the hairs out of his soup.

It's a wonder the theological seminaries don't do some strenuous advertising. Their courses in political science or political strategy ought to be the best presented in the country after the way the preachers turned the last election into a system of propaganda and mudslinging.

"Legs" Diamond is "standing in San Francisco Bay with the water up to his chin", practically, but he refuses to "go west". But he is going South as soon as he is released from the Welfare Island Hospital. I wonder if his residence in Florida with Capone won't about ruin the real estate market down there.

Without a doubt the national emblem of Poland should be a cut of the Piano of Paderewski, who is practically the Savior of Poland. No doubt the building of hospitals, highways and railways are dependent upon the success of his "Farewell Recital" in this country.

Hon. R. L. Ward spoke to a nice crowd at Matthews Tuesday night He talked from the two texts of: "The Difference Between Man and Monkey, in That Man Thinks", and "If You Aren't Satisfied With Wha You Are Getting, By the Grace of God, Change!" He touched upon the Farm Relief with his usual congenialty and in acquiescence to our curiosities as to where Short was when the voting on the Flood Control Bill was going on, he answered that. The speaking was enjoyed very much by all Democrats present.

The meeting Tuesday night wa the biggest one that either party has held so far, even counting the church service held at the Christian church by Dewey Short, candidate for Congress, Republican ticket, second term—if you didn't know.

Missouri farmers are getting some $44,728,150 less for their products this year than they received last year. The level of farm commodity price is about 25 per cent lower this year than last year. If you like that kind of prosperity, then vote the Republican ticket; if you would appreciate a better grade of prosperity than the Hoover brand, then vote the Democratic ticket. "Hoover prosperity and prices", or "Wilson prosperity and prices"—take your choice at the polls November 4th.

It the Hawley-Smoot Tariff bill) will be an ignominous failure. There was no demand for such legislation and no need for it. It has aroused fears and animosities all over the world, creating demands for reprisals that in some important countries have already resulted in retaliatory legislation inimical to our interests It has cost us enormously in world trdae. It would work harm rather than good to the farmers, in whose name it was obviously undertaken and it would lay upon American consumers a tremendous burden of increased costs. It is a calamitous measure without an atom of good in it.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat (Ind.) May 17.

The Sikeston Standard $1.50 per year

Rev. Bellanger, who filled the pulpit of the Sikeston Christian church for several months last year, was a visitor in the city Tuesday and paid The Standard a social call.

During the week The Standard paid into the coffers of Uncle Sam for postage for one set of bills for the Whiz-Bang Store, $92.54, which is the largest postal bill paid by The Standard during our business career in Sikeston. In addition to the 9150 posters sent through the mail, some 4000 more printed to be delivered by hand in Kennett, Hayti, Chaffee, and Sikeston. It was a well-printed poster, too, 8 pages 11x17½.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI NORTHEAST ARKANSAS

Medium to heavy rains fell in this territory during the week and were followed by colder weather. The first frost of the season occurred on the night of October 23. A heavy frost was reported at Hornersville Mo., but no serious damage resulted The average frost date for this section is November 1. Cotton picking has slowed up for the present. The turnout is poor in comparison with last year. Fall pastures continue to furnish plenty of grazing for live stock and quite a bit is being cut for hay. Fall gardens are numerous and excellent in quality. All Fall sown grains are up to a good stand and are making good growth. The Fall bean crop is turning out better than was expected and the canning factories are busy saving them.

PANTHER LAKE ASS'N. OF S. E. MISSOURI

Sikes Rogers and Lee Bowman were in Sikeston a few days ago in behalf of a resort at Panther Lake near Millerville in Cape Girardeau County.

It is proposed to purchase 453 acres of land in Panther Creek Valley in Cape Girardeau and Bollinger Counties, and to construct a dam across Panther Creek west of its intersection with Little Whitewater in order to provide a large lake for boating, bathing, fishing and outing purposes, all planned to be ready for next season. Little Whitewater however, 7000 feet away will provide fishing for the members from the start. The corporation proposes to stock the lake with game fish, provide play grounds, camp grounds, drives and some club house accommodations, and will assign individual camp sites to all members.

It is proposed to have a membership of but 300, the fee, $200 each in cash or installments, will pay for the land and improvements. Maintainance fund will not exceed $10 per year per member.

This seems to be very meritorious proposition and the location is ideal It is believed a number of Sikestonians will apply for membership as Panther Lake will be but a short drive on concrete roads to within a few miles of the grounds.

VOTE YES ... Help St. Louis Carry Out Its Great River Front Development Program!

ST. LOUIS wants to improve and beautify its Central river front, by widening and double-decking Third Street, which will convert a blighted district, now an eyesore, into a beauty spot of which all Missouri will be proud.

Proposition No. 6 is Necessary for the Early and Successful Completion of the Program

Proposition No. 6 is a Constitutional Amendment permitting marginal condemnation. It does not permit the indiscriminate condemnation of property, but only that bordering the improvement. Its principal purpose is to rid the improvement of unsightly fragments of bordering land, by giving the municipality authority to replot the property, and to control its use, so that it will be in keeping with the general improvement.

Only an Enabling Act

The St. Louis City Charter, adopted in 1914, provides for marginal condemnation, but the City cannot even consider the advisability of exercising this authority unless the enabling Constitutional Amendment is voted by the state at large.

Other Progressive States Have It

New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin and California possess similar Constitutional provisions.

PLACED UPON THE BALLOT BY 60,562 MISSOURI VOTERS

PARTY LEADERS SPEAK TO VOTERS

Both political parties kept faith with their constituents this week by presenting "vital" and "salient" points in the campaign to the voters. The Democrats first presented their side of the story through Dr. Wm G. Patton of St. Louis at the Armory Tuesday evening.

Dewey Short, candidate for re-election to Congress on the Republican slate, addressed his party followers in the same hall Wednesday night

Both speakers addressed representative audiences, and neither one succeeded in convincing "the other side". Candidates for major offices in the county were present at both meetings.

PECULIAR

Cass County, Missouri, has a town named Peculiar. This is how it got its name: On establishing it, the fuonders wanted a suitable name and asked the postoffice department at Washington to suggest one. The department didn't offer any name, but suggested one "peculiar" to the community so the city fathers just called it Peculiar and let it go at that.

A baby does not need shoes until walking time. Shoes put on before then, generaly for appearance, do more harm than good. The first walking shoes should have flexible but firm soles, unpolished, preferably slightly buffed, and broad enough to be a steady platform under each foot. Very soft soles curl and make more difficult the baby's task of learning balance. Stiff or broadlike soles are also to be avoided. The toes of the uppers should be full or puffy, not flat and cramping to the toes.

SENIORS EXCELL IN ACHIEVEMENT TESTS

As might be expected of lordly Seniors, worldly wise and exceedingly knowing in things pertaining to "book larnin' ", the theoretically wise group excelled in actual knowledge as measured in Standard Achievement Tests covered in the four-year course of English, Mathematics, Science and History. The tests were recently given to the Senior group.

In all lines the class was up to standard or above. The boys led strange as that may seem, in all lines except English, where the girls excelled. The boys proved themselves especialy apt in Mathmatics. On the whole, the class broke records established by the Seniors of 1929.

Ira Keller led in English and History; Audrey Reiss in Mathematics and Marshall Walker in Science.

Y. W. A. Missionary Society of the Baptist church gave a Hallowe'en party Tuesday night at the home of Miss Hontas Lee, with twenty-five present. A grand time was enjoyed by all.

DEPUTY SHERIFF IS HELD ON $4000 BOND FOR DEATH OF SLAIN BROTHER OFFICER

Funeral services were held Monday afternon at 2:30 at the residence in Lilbourn for Jesse Henderson, age 38, City Marshal at Lilbourn, who was fatally wounded at a ball game at Parma, Sunday afternoon, by Cleatus Smith, deputy sheriff.

It is alleged that Smith was attempting to keep a drunken man out of the ball park and Henderson attempted to infere when Smith struck the man over the head with his pistol, which discharged, the bullet striking Henderson in the chest, killing him instantly. Witnesses state that Smith had his finger on the trigger of the gun when he struck the man.

Coroner's inquest was held Monday morning and a verdict of murder in the first degree was returned. Smith was held in the County jail without bond until Tuesday afternoon. He was released on $400 bond under the habeaus corpus act.

Henderson leaves a wife and four children. Interment was made in the Evergreen cemetery at New Madrid.

RABBIT BREEDERS TO MEET MONDAY

The Southeast Missouri Rabbit Breeders' Association will hold its regular monthly meeting Sunday afternoon, 2:30 o'clock, at the home of S. L. Lawrence in this city. All members are requested to attend and "bring a friend".

Members of the association invite anyone interested in rabbit breeding to attend.

The group now number 38 persons on its membership roll, and embraces the following towns, New Madrid, Cape Girardeau, Dexter, Sikeston Charleston, Poplar Bluff and Piedmonth. The advisability of holding another rabbit show similar to the one conducted this summer will come under discussion.

The Association sponsored its first rabbit show this summer, June 8 and 9 in the Sexton Building, Sikeston. It was estimated that between 2500 and 3000 persons atended the showing of pedigreed stock.

Selection of a permanent meeting place and the election of one person to act as a general purchasing agent for the Association will come under discuss the meeting Sunday afternoon.

STEAL TWO CHICKENS, TWO YEARS IN PRISON

Two months ago a tramp awoke in a Sikeston box car when an unknown party threw a sack of chickens into his improvised "bed". He assisted local officers in making the arrest of Ben Hart, negro.

The chickens, two in number, were recovered and Hart last week faced a judge. Wednesday he departed for Jefferson City in company with Jess Wilkins, Constable of New Madrid, to take up his new residence in the State penitentiary. He will remain two years as guest of the State.

In the party with Hart and officer Wilkins were Will Taylor, negro of Portageville, five years for check forgery, for $8.25, and Will Jones, negro, Steele, two years for obtaining money under false pretenses.

SIKTSTON WORKING PEOPLE'S CHURCH AROUSING PEOPLE ALL OVER NATION

The proposed new Sikeston church for working people, which will be the only church in the United States of the Fundamentalist type, where all of the Bible is preached, believed and taught, wholely dedicted to the common people, the rank and file of America, is arousing nation-wide interest. Elder John B. Huffman is the founder-pastor, without salary.

An architect of Paducah, Ky., has written us that he will furnish plans and blue prints for the new edifice free of charge.

"The Publishers' Auxiliary", a journal of 15000 circulation, wholely published in the interests of newspaper men, printers, editors, special feature and advertising people, published small article on the front page of that publication in the issue of October 25, top of second column, with a border around the notice.

An Eastern syndicate, through their special correspondent, has asked for special articles concerning this unusual church and also paid for a photographer taking four pictures of Elder Huffman, which wa done and sent out Wednesday night

S. W. Applegate, O. L. Spencer and Buckner-Ragsdale Store Co. are among the number who have sent us donations on the new church building and lots since last week's issue of The Standard. Also two or three others who have sent us a letter subscribing a certain amount they have donated, but deferred payment of the money until a later date. Others will contribute before the close of the week.

Every cent that has been sent or handed in to me is still on hand. Have not used one penny of the money so far. Have spent several dollars for stamps, stamped envelopes stationery and some incidental expenses, but I have borne all this expense myself. Every penny will be placed in banks and books kept of all receipts and expenditures and nothing will be paid out without showing to whom and what for. The writer has managed the construction of a number of churches now under his supervision in Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, North Carolina Michigan, Canada, etc., but this is the only one where the general public and folks of other churches and those who are not connected with any church, are asked to supply all the money for the building. The Working People's Church is the only one I have raised, or helped to raise the money to erect, that has entailed so much worry, personal time, sacrifice devotion and expenditure of my own money to construct. I never knew of a minister in this age undergoing such a trial without a penny and furnishing his own money for incidental expenses incurred.

We expect people to attend this church regularly for 50 miles around and at intervals by folks from all over the Nation.

The church will be just as nice and as commodious as the money contributed will erect. We want to construct a building 40x60, with basement, concrete front and back steps and walk, brick veneer, vestibule and modern conveniences. Will build just what the money sent in will construct. Can't commence work for 30 or 60 days yet.

Send your donation to Elder John B. Huffman, Box 476, Sikeston, Mo., and you will be aiding one of the best causes in the world.

Thank you, Mr. Standard editor, you have contributed more than all by your liberal allowance of space for our church notices.—John B. Huffman.

LAD OBEYS HEALTH LAW RAT CHEWS ON NOSE

After this Johnnie Robertson, 503 Moore Avenue, will sleep with his nose under cover, health authorities and fresh air addicts to the contrary notwithstanding. He obeyed this health law Tuesday night. Wednesday morning at 2:15 o'clock, he awakened horrified to find a rat gnawing on his olfactory organ. Anti-tetanus shots have been adminstered and Johnnie's nose is swathed in gauze and bandages. Friends are considering a gift of the prose works of Edgar Allen Poe.

If the philosophy of Messrs. Legge and Hyde were correct the recent protracted drouth should have thoroughly solved the farm relief problem. Since it has not done so, the farmers of the Corn Belt States cannot be blamed for refusing to accept the philosophy of these eminent representatives of the Hoover administration.—Linneus, Mo., Bulletin.

SCOUTS IN DISTRICT WILL PARTICIPATE IN 'EFFICIENCY' INTER-TROOP TESTS

For five weeks, November 2 to December 6, inclusive, the Boy Scout troops of Charleston, Cape Girardeau, Sikeston and Poplar Bluff will participate in an Inter-troop Rating Plan, which will provide a test of the efficiency of the troops. It is not so much a contest with one troop working against another, but rather it is proposed as a means of comparing the actual effectiveness of our troops with what is regarded as a standard.

The plan is so arranged that every troop has the same opportunity to reach the goals set as has every other troop. The items of the plan have been carefully chosen, and the points allowed have been evaluated with the greatest of care. It is believed that Scoutmasters will find the contest a wholesome stimulus to the kind of Scouting they want their troops to do, and that every effort spent in its promotion will be found profitable.

It will be noticed that every troop can win a first prize. To win does not mean to beat some other troop but to reach a certain goal. Of course, the standing of a given troop in comparison with other troops of the community, or the Area, may be used as a stimulus to Scouts to do their best, but the idea back of the contest is non-competitive.

The Rating Plan furnishes the basis for every troop to put every phase of its Scouting actively on new and higher levels. It provides incentive for Scout advancement on a basis which should be permanently helpful It purposes to build up a set of Scout habits which shall last through the coming months, bringing to the Area new and and permanent standards of Scouting efficiency. It has in it the possibility of reducing the Scoutmaster's worries to a minimum It will stimulate Church attendance and participation in religious activities. It provides stimulus for bettering school work. The contest will do for the troop what its leaders most earnestly desire that it shall do.

The period of Troop Rating will start Sunday, November 2nd and continue through Saturday, December 6 making five weeks. All registered Scouts and commissioned officials are included. A list of eligible Scouts and officials, according to the office records will be mailed to each Scoutmaster prior to November 2.

Troops will be rated on a point basis. It is possible for a troop to secure 1645 points. This is computed by assuming that a perfect score is made in all items every week, and in all final items, that three new recruits are secured, and that two hikes are taken by each Scout. If bonus points on tests are earned, or if more than three recruits are secured, or if more than two hikes are taken, it is possible to secure more than 1645 points.

Troops will be rated as "Superior" "Standard", or "Satisfactory". If a total of 1300 points, (80 per cent) is earned, the troop will receive a "Superior" banner; if 1150 points, (71 per cent) are earned, the troop will receive the "Standard" banner; if 1000 points, (60 per cent) are earned, the troop will receive a "Satisfactory" banner. On this liberal basis every troop in the Area should receive a banner.

The following items are included in the rating:

Troop meeting held on regular night.
Attendance of registered Scouts at Troop meetings.
Wearing of the uniform.
Attendance of commissioned officials.
Attendance of troop committeemen
Content of Troop meeting.
Troop officers' meeting.
Attendance of Scouts at church.

WOUNDED BOY NEAR DEATH IN CAIRO HOSPITAL

Cairo, October 29.—Raymer Morrow, 19, high school youth, of Anniston, Mo., remains in a critical condition at St. Mary's Hospital, where he is suffering from a shotgun wound received accidently when he held the muzzle of the gun and struck at a rabbit with the stock of the weapon while out hunting with Al Bone near Anniston at noon Tuesday. In striking at the rabbit, young Morrow had thought the safety lug was in position on the gun.

The full load of shot struck the youth low in the body and ranged upward through his abdomen. Surgeons removed four feet of his intestines in a desperate to save his life. It was estimated that more than 200 shots entered young Morrow's body.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Morrow. His father is one of the most prominent levee contractors in this section of the country.

While the youth lies at St. Mary's with only a fighting chance to live his grandmother, Mrs. G. W. Forgery, lies at the point of her death in her home at Anniston.

FIND JOINT OF PREHISTORIC ANIMAL

New Madrid, October 28.—The bone of a prehistoric monster was found in the river bottom near Portageville this week by Dr. H. O'Kelley of Portageville, who was hunting there. The bone is about two feet long and weighs 25 pounds and at the join is over a foot wide. It appears to be part of the lower extermity of some gigantic animal that once inhabited the earth, though these monsters were not known to have inahbited this part of the country. It was partly buried in the mud in the swamp and a part was broken off. It is possible that it might have washed there during some flood period. The bone will be presented to the State Museum for study and display.

"A Chicken For Every Pot"

Only the meanest of Democrats would hold the Republican party entirely responsible for the present hard times. As Calvin Coolidge pointed out the other day, nobody can be blamed for the drouth. And we know that the economic depression is world-wide.

This being true, it may seem unfair to reprint at this unhappy moment some of the promises made by the Republican party management during the golden months of 1928. Nevertheless, we propose to do just that and then to explain why.

There appeared shortly before the 1928 election an advertisement entitled "Chicken For Every Pot". Consider some of its phrases:

"The Republican party isn't a 'poor man's party'. Republican prosperity has erased that degrading phrase from our political vocabulary. The Republican party is equality's party—opportunity's party—democracy's party—the party of national development, not sectional interests—the impartial servant of every state and condition in the Union.

"Republican efficiency has filled the workingman's dinner pail—and his gasoline tank besides—made telephone, radios and sanitary plumbing standard household equipment, and placed the whole nation in the silk stocking class.

"Republican prosperity is written on fuller wage envelopes, written in factory chimney smoke, written on the walls of new construction, written in savings bank books, writen in mercantile balances, and written in the peak value of stocks and bonds.

"Republican prosperity has reduced hours and increased earning capacity, silenced discontent, put the proverbial 'chicken in every pot', and a car in every backyard to boot."

Which ought to be about enough of that. Already you are asking: "Why bring that up?"

Not because of a desire to point out that little or any of it is true nor or was true even at the time it was printed. Not to point out that the Republican party was claiming credit in 1928 for good times that it hadn't invented or manufactured or even inteligently promoted. Any party in power would have made the same claim.

Nor is it because we wish to remind the Republican management that the party is actually responsible for some of our present hard times. The erection of a tariff that already has cut seriously into our foreign trade, for instance. The refusal to put through a program to forestall widespread unemployment, on the one hand, and aid the unemployed, on the other.

No, it has nothing to do with the party's sins in the past. It has to do with the present and future.

For the Republican party is on the stump in the present congressional campaign, not promising to undo the damage done through the tariff, but defending its suicidal action; not promising to expedite measures to safeguard against future unemployment, but preserving a clammy silence on this all-important subject.

While this is the attitude of the party's responsible spokesmen in 1930, we feel a reminder of the platinum promises of 1928 is not out of place.

AN "INTELLIGENT" JURY

Twelve torn bits of paper, each approximately two inches square, came into the possesion of a Toledo law firm recently. They were the original ballots cast by the jurors who served during the trial of a criminal case in Lucas County common pleas court. The jury disagreed, three members voting not guilty and nine guilty.

On six ballots the word "guilty" was spelled correctly. On six it was spelled incorrectly, gilty, guity or guilde. The word was misspelled on all the "not guilty" ballots, but what cares the defendant who escaped conviction by his peers?

The jury box isn't a spelling school. Sound judgment and practical experience in the affairs of the world are more important than the intricacies of English word architecture. Even a United States Senator slipped up recently on "tranquillity" omiting one "l" and citing as his au-thority the United States Constitution rather than the dictionary.

But when 50 per cent of the members of a body charged with grave responsibilities involving the liberty and reputation of a citizen and the protection of society stumble over a much-used 6-letter word, it may be time to talk about an intelligence test as qualification for jury service. —Toledo Blade.

The play, 'Romance", at the Malone Theatre, Sunday and Monday with Greta Garbo in the leading role, was one of the most splendid attractions that has been offered in many a day. The actress was very sweet and gentle and "The Last Rose of Summer", the song that ran thru the play, brought back to memory many songs of crinoline days that will forever linger in the minds of many of our older citizens. The Romance was taken from the actual life of Robert Armstrong Chandler former sheriff of Brooklyn, N. Y., who married Lina Cavallini, the noted Italian opera singer, who still lives. Chandler but recently died in New York at the age of 58 years. He divorced his Italian beauty many years ago. This play was very impressive with touches of sadnes running through the entire play.

WRITER OF PICCOLLO PETE SONGS COMING

They are on their way, this ruthless dance music aggregation called the Texas Tommies and directed by the famous composer-leader, Phil Baxter. Their appearance in Sikeston Friday night, under the auspices of the American Legion, is not far in the offing and there is breathless suspense in the air, for everyone has at least heard of their accomplishments and can guess at their further potentialities.

Phil Baxter, himself ,born of a musical family, played his first professional engagement at the age of fourteen when he droned out one tune of a third rate piano in a noisy skating rink. Conditions have changed in fifteen years for Baxter however. The oniy thing of importance that young Phil has carried with him during his rise in the profession has been the accomplishment of playing music solely by ear. During his whole eventful and successful career, Phil Baxter has never learned to read a written note of music. He is unusually sensitive to rhythm and harmony and it has been this that has helped him to make a name for himself.

While he was in the war, Baxter played the piano, mostly dealing in harmony chords. Paul Whiteman played the fiddle to his accompaniment and the two made their duty to amuse the sick sailors and marines at a hospital on Mare Island California. With these two now famous musical gentlemen, Rudy Weidoff of saxophone renown made the third. He was the marine band master at the island. From Whiteman and Weidoff, young Baxter learned a great deal about the music that interested him. His association with them was more instructive than any amount of printed matter and a metronome would have been. So following his ambitions, Baxter joined an orchestra as a pianist after the war had ended. Not much later his present occupation of orchestra leading was forced upon him and after a while he grew to like it. Now he realizes it is the ideal occupation for him, for it furnishes him an outlet for the hit songs he seems to turn out with great ease to the delight of the world.

In the meantime, under the exclusive management of the Music Corporation of America, Phil Baxter leads his rhythmic band through torrid zones of modern dance music playing at dance places of importance, recording for Victor and broadcasting over the air. For that reason it is only fair to issue the warning—the Texas Tommies are coming

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

BECAUSE

1. Scott County has been made one of the cleanest counties in this section of the State.

2. During his 3 years and 9 month as prosecuting attorney he has handled over 1000 criminal cases, including several for highway robbery, rape, bank robbery and murder.

3. Thru his efforts $11,077.34 has been assessed and collected in fines from law violators and placed to the credit of the county school fund, and $2987.50 has been collected in prosecuting attorney fees for securing convictions, and paid over to the County, making a total of $14,064.84, which is $4060.84 more than the total salary the county pays him ($2500 per year) for his full 4-year term.

4. He has secured convictions and penitentiary or reform school sentences against 75 felons for a total of 275 years.

5. Of the great number of criminals he has prosecuted, only 5 have been acquitted by juries.

6. His reputation has become such that during the August, 1930 term of the Circuit Court, not a single defendant stood trial, 18 pleading guilty, 10 of them to felonies. As the costs of a jury trial in Circuit Court averages from $50.00 to $100.00 in jury fees, witness fees, etc., the taxpayers were saved more than $1000.00 in court costs at this one term of court.

8. All of the above figures can be verified from the records of the Circuit Clerk, the County Clerk and County Treasurer at Benton. We challenge comparison of Mr. Montgomery's record with the record of any previous prosecuting attorney of this county, or any other county in this section of the State.

9. His honesty and integrity have never been questioned.

10. This important office should be filled by an experienced attorney of proven ability.

CHARLESTON WOMAN HEADS DISTRICT REBEKAH LODGE

Charleston, October 30.—At a special meeting of the Sikeston District Assembly of the Rebekah Lodge, which was held Tuesday at Caruthersville, Mrs. Joe Howlett of this city was elected Warden and Mrs. John Williams of this city was appointed Chaplin for the District Some ten members of the local lodge of this city took the State Assembly Degree—which was put on at this time by the State President, Warden and Secretary of the Rebekah Lodge of Missouri, who were in attendance at this meeting.

J. B. Campbell, Car Service Agent of the American Railway Association, Washington, D. C., was in Benton Monday checking over with the County Agent, the permits granted farmers to use the one-third freight reduction rate to ship in hay and feed stuff into the drouth restricted area.

Lice on poultry will keep your profits down. One of the best methods getting rid of these creatures according to County Agent Renner is to clean the house thoroughly applying crude oil or old car oil to all cracks on the roosting poles and dropping boards. Before the fowls go to roost apply a very small quantity of Nicotine Sulphate (Trade Name) Black Leaf 40 to the roost. This material liberates a gas which will work all through the feathers of the birds and kills the lice that are on the bodies of the poultry.

Cowpeas, beans, popcorn and other grain either for seed or for human consumption can be kept free from weevils if properly handled. One of the easiest methods is to place the grain to be treated in barrels or a tight bin and applying carbon bisulfide at the rate of 3 to 5 pounds per 100 bushels of grain. Carbon bisulfide makes a gas which is heavier than air thus place the material in open saucers on top of the grain and cover the container barrel or box with sacks to keep the fumes down. All forms of insect life will be killed by this operation. If the seed is allowed to say in the open after treating, the application should be repeated in about thirty days. For other methods of treating your seed see your County Agent.

We are desirous of making it very plain to our Republican friends that the mistake which appeared in the Advertisement of Congressman Dewey Short's Wednesday night address was not intentional, as, whatever our editorial opinion may be of his ability as a Congressman, would not influence us in any way in trying to deliberately make an error in an advertisement. We try to give the news fairly and impartially and our advertisements to the best of our ability and intention are correct as to the copy handed to us, but sometime in the rush of things, we are only human and do occasionally make mistakes. However, if anyone made his appearance at the Armory Tuesday night under the impression that he was to hear a Republican speech, we believe that a few moments of attention would have corrected his belief.

SIX OF NINETEEN POULTRY PROJECTS SUPERVISED BY MO. PAC. ARE IN MISSOURI

A total of six out of nineteen of the poultry demonstration projects carried on under the supervision of the Missouri Pacific Agricultural Development Department are located in Missouri, and three of them are in our immediate territory being located in Charleston, Bertrand and Doniphan. The projects are to demonstrate what can be done with an average poultry flock if properly managed.

Projects in Jasper, Hendrickson and Warsaw have met with the requirements of the State College of Agriculture.

H. A. Tanner, agent at Doniphan, who has long been an influence in other phases of agricultural work, as well as poultry, in his community has found it necessary to discontinue his demonstration temporarily because of added duties at his station which do not allow him to give the required amount of time to his flock

L. J. Schwab, agent at Bertrand, is one of the most enthusiastic of the Missouri Pacific demonstrators He is carrying the gospel of practical poulrty management throughout his territory. He started his demonstration on a modest scale and now has a 30x30 Missouri Pacific type straw loft laying house and a 12x24 double brooder house. He will have a laying flock of approximately 300 hens this winter. He sells hatching eggs, a few baby chicks, and some cockerels for breeding stock. His flock is state accredited, having met the requirements of breeding and management of the State College of Agriculture

E. E. Oliver, agent at Charleston is conducting a very fine demonstration of a small town backyard flock While he must necessarily keep his flock small because of lack of space he has a well equipped laying house and keeps his hens in high production.

Mrs. H. L. Smith and Miss Myra Tanner will leave Friday for a weekend visit in Cape Girardeau. Mrs. Smith will be the guest of the House Mother, Mrs. Ella Hutton, while Miss Tanner will be entertained by the Dean, Miss Gillard. They anticipate the pleasure of hearing the Navy Band and will return Sunday evening.

"That Interesting Store"

Furniture—Radio—Undertaking

Our 33rd Year in Charleston

A good bulk of our trade comes from folks who are interested more in the service they get from furniture than in style lines. This is true not because they do not like stylsih articles in the home, but because their pocketbooks are somewhat flat, preventing them from indulging in late styles which cost a good deal. For these hundreds of families our used furniture department on top floor affords many excellent values in furniture that has years of real service ahead. Chain stores and mail order houses may shade us a few cents now and then on new items but for the poor man who must stretch his dollars to the limit our top floor bargains have them skinned a block. As an example there is a very pretty Queen Anne dining set of eight pieces, all in Ai condition which may be purchased for $50—less than half original cost.

And when it comes to new goods you will be impressed with the exceptional values received lately on living room suites at $85.00, bedroom sets at $120.00 and dining outfits in a decidedly new design for $135.00—any of which are consistent with nice homes. Trade in your old pieces on the purchase of new.

On the subject of Radio, a demand has lately come about for very small sets known as "Midgets". They sell for a good deal lower price than the larger models and some of them are reliable. A new one in this line comes to us this week. It is the "CLARION JR." and is regarded as one of the leaders in that field. You must see it to appreciate its full value. The selling price is $63.30 complete. Look up the big ad in this week's Collier's, page 34. It is a wonder—somewhat ahead of others—and—look at the price again.

The factory man from the Monarch Range factory will be in Charleston again next week to make his regular round selling this remarkable range. He has some especially attractive terms for farmers who find it inconvenient to pay monthly. Monarchs are leaders in fine ranges. Money is not spared in keepig them at the front.

The patter of tiny feet was heard from the head of the stair. Mrs. Smythe raised her hand, warning the members of her bridge club to be silent.
"Hush", she said softly. "The children are going to deliver their good-night message. It always gives me a feeling of reverence to hear them. Listen".
"Mamma", came the message in a shrill whisper, "Willie found a bedbug".

Work of Two Brilliant Men Revolutionized Dairying

Prying Professor Found Simple Way to Measure Fat Content of Cream; Cream Separator Work of Swedish Inventor.

Dr. De Laval.

Two adventurous and brilliant men working in different parts of the world practically revolutionized the greatest rural industry in the United States. A prying professor named Babcock, working in the laboratory of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, found a simple, accurate way to determine the butterfat content of milk or cream. A brilliant inventive genius named De Laval, laboring in his workshop in Sweden, found a way by which whole milk could be accurately, continuously and quickly separated into cream and skimmilk. De Laval also inaugurated the research which resulted in the widely-used efficient mechanical milker of today.

Professor Babcock's discovery stabilized the dairy industry. Doctor De Laval's separator saved farm women millions of dollars' worth of cream while his milking machine saved farm men millions of hours of drudgery.

"When it is realized," says Dr. C. W. Larson, former director of the National Dairy Council, "that the change from the gravity method of obtaining cream for buttermaking and other purposes to the continuous separator resulted in the saving of labor, a better quality of cream and butter, a skim milk superior for feeding purposes and available for the manufacture of by-products, and a great saving of the butterfat that was lost in the skim milk, the value of this ingenious invention can scarcely be overestimated.

Old Methods Wasteful.

"If all the cream that was used in this country last year for making butter alone had been separated by the deep-setting system, which was the best method known at the time the centrifugal separator was invented, more than $35,000,000 worth of butterfat would have been left in the skim milk. This does not take into consideration the enormous quantity of cream that was used as cream and for making ice cream. By the old method much more labor would have been required in the homes and in the factories, and the present high quality of products could not have been made."

The cream separator eliminates the great waste which accompanies hand skimming methods. According to experiments conducted at the Indiana State Experiment Station in separating a certain quantity of milk, 26.2 pounds of butterfat were lost by shallow pan gravity setting, and 40.07 pounds were lost by water dilution, while only 1.2 pounds were lost when a centrifugal separator was used. This gives one an idea of the enormous losses which occur from hand skimming and which a good separator eliminates. In addition, it saves all the time, trouble, bother of setting, handling and washing pans, and provides the skim milk in a sweet condition, ideal for feeding young stock. This is extremely important, as much of the profit from dairying comes from proper utilization of skim milk.

Find Worn Separators Faulty.

There are many separators in use today, however, that are wasting valuable butterfat in the skim milk without the owner knowing of his losses. Badly worn separators, or ones that were of faulty construction to begin with, should be replaced. A farm wife can tell whether her coffee grinder is grinding fine, medium or coarse by merely looking at the texture of the coffee after it has passed through the grinder. But no one can tell how much cream a separator is wasting by looking at the skim milk, nor by filling a glass with skim milk and allowing it to "set" on the window sill for a day or more to see how much cream rises to the top. When one "sets" skim milk that has gone through the separator it cannot be expected that the small, hard-to-get fat globules will work their way through the milk serum and rise to the top unless there is an unusually heavy loss. "Setting" skim milk is merely an impractical way of trying to test an inefficient separator by the more inefficient gravity setting "test."

Many By-Products to 'Cream Farming'

No More Profit to Farmer in "Higher Price" of Fluid Milk.

The best system of farming is the one which results in the greatest financial advantage and contributes most to the farmer's economic wants, accord to the De Laval Bureau of Dairying. It's the profit, not just the amount received for farm products that counts.

During recent years there has been a tendency among farmers to go into the production of fluid milk for the big city market without realizing that it costs in the neighborhood of 50 cents per 100 pounds more to produce the kind of milk consumers in the cities are demanding. Surveys made by a Mid-Western Agricultural college showed that it was costing farmers $2.15 to $2.60 per hundred pounds to produce milk for which they received only $2.50, and that of the 14 cents per quart for milk paid by the consumer the dealer received 8.6 cents and the farmer 5.3 cents.

Higher Price, But No More Profit.

The desire to sell milk as whole milk rather than as cream or milk to be converted into butter or cheese is due to a belief that the "higher price" leaves the greatest profit, says the Bureau. The skim milk profit angle is too often completely forgotten. When whole milk is shipped the profits that could be made from skim milk, the valuable by-products of "cream farming," are lost. The returns it is possible to make by properly making use of the skim milk retained on the farm after the cream has been separated from the whole milk is something far-sighted stock and dairy farmers should not overlook.

An explanation of the advantages of retaining skim milk on the farm is worked out in an example cited by a leading dairy authority as follows:

"The good creamery last year paid at least an average price of 50 cents a pound for fat. This would bring a return of $1.75 net for 3½ per cent milk. The skim milk left on the farm is easily worth 50 cents out of every 100 pounds, provided of course the dairy farmer is raising the right kind of live stock. This brings his milk to $2.25 net. It has been calculated by those who have given the matter study that it costs in the neighborhood of 50 cents more to produce the kind of milk that the consumers of Chicago are demanding. Adding this to the price returned by the creamery, we have $2.75. Out of this $2.75 the expense of operating the association must come and the milk must be hauled to the local plant, which costs from 10 to 20 cents a hundred. In other words, the person selling whole milk can scarcely expect to net any more than $2.50 a hundred. This would leave but 25 cents a hundred for the production of milk over that which the creamery pays and it is doubtful whether this will compensate for more than 50 per cent of the additional costs of producing market milk.

Here's How to Figure It Out.

"Further, when skim milk is used on the farm it permits a different type of farming to be developed. It is difficult, indeed, to say how much more a farmer can earn if he raises his calves, some hogs and chickens. This will depend upon the management of the farm, but it is a factor of no small consequence and should be considered by those who would leave their creameries and cheese factories in order to get what appears to be a much higher price for their milk."

FIND MECHANICAL MILKER CUTS COSTS

Tests completed at the Iowa State Agricultural college showed a saving of 50 per cent in time and 25 per cent in costs by milking cows through the use of a mechanical system, reports the De Laval Bureau of Dairying.

The experiments were conducted to determine the labor economy and any reduction in costs that might come through the use of the milking machine as compared with the common practice of milking by hand. The objection frequently heard that the saving in time achieved by mechanical milking is more than offset by the extra labor involved in washing the utensils was shown to have no basis. It was found that with the machine the entire milking job, including the necessary cleaning of the mechanical equipment, could be done in half the time required by hand. It was also shown that the saving in labor cost more than offset the cost of the milker. Not only did the milking machine save time and lower the cost of the milking operation, but it also removed a great deal of the drudgery of milking.

Costly to Feed Hogs Skimmilk Rich in Fat

On many farms wornout, improperly designed or poorly constructed separators are in daily use, despite the valuable educational work of the agricultural colleges, county agents and cow-test association supervisors, states the De Laval Bureau of Dairying. Instead of serving as "cream savers" these faulty machines have become "cream thieves." One state cow-testing association report published last year showed 19 separators losing $50 a month. It is costly business to feed butterfat worth $44 per hundred pounds to hogs selling for between $8.00 and $12.00 per hundred.

COUNTY AGENT SERVICE TO BE MADE STATE-WIDE

By November 1, County Agent service will be provided every county in the State of Missouri, including 38 Counties which heretofore have been without this extension service of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. Completion of the County Agent system will make it possible for Missouri to receive full benefit from $281,000 provided for this State by the Smith-Lever law and other congressional acts, should this amount be matched, dollar for dollar, by State appropriations.

The completed system does not provide an individual agent for each separate county, nor will this be possible for some time to come. Little Journeys in Americana

By LESTER B. COLBY

An Unusual Indian

JAMES B. FINLEY emigrated to Northwest Territory in 1796 as a child with his parents. He lived among the Indians for more than seventy years. He became a preacher and worked long and tirelessly at the almost hopeless job of rescuing the red men of that day from savagery.

Among the Indians he was known as Rah-Wah-Wah or "The Old Chief." In the evening time of his life he wrote a book, a sort of memoir of his years on the frontier. I have never seen but two copies of this book and I possess one of them.

In the book he pictures some of the remarkable personalities he knew among the Indians. One character especially intrigues me. The man was known as Captain Shigser. He must have been a most unusual sort of Indian. Too, he had an unusual sort of wife.

I feel that I can do no better than to let Finley describe him. I quote:

"He was among the handsomest, best made, and, I think, the proudest man I ever saw. He was remarkable for his entire abstinence from all intoxicating drinks, or mingling with the company of any Indians when drinking. He was married to a squaw, half white, said to be the daughter of General Butler.

"She was a beautiful woman. Her skin was not dark; and her large, blue eyes; her long, black hair, and tall, well-proportioned person, with her rich and embroidered dress, gave her a magnificent appearance.

"He was dressed in the finest broadcloth, made in the fashion of the Indian costume, with thirty silver half-moons hanging on his breast and down his back. His headband was filled with silver bobs, and his linen bosom was stuck full of silver brooches; his belt was of the finest and best of wampum, and interwoven with beads and porcupine quills; his leggins were fringed, and filled with silver bobs, and beautifully decorated with horse-hair, dyed red; his moccasins were lined with green silk and ornamented with porcupine quills. All they had was in perfect keeping.

"His tomahawk blade, pipe, and handle, and his rifle barrel and stock were inlaid with silver; and their horses were of the best kind; and all their equipage, blankets and everything about their camp were in the same style. They did not pitch their tent close to the other Indians and very seldom associated with them.

"I have given this description to show, that even in savage life, there are great distinctions in their habits and ruling passions. I do not know what became of this couple, but I should not wonder if they both fell a prey to savage envy, for those drunken Indians did not like them.

"They said, 'Too much proud.'

"I never knew but two other Indians but would drink and become intoxicated at times—the one was a Mohawk, and the other a Seneca."

Compare Shigser with Billy Wyandott and his squaw, Betty. Betty and Billy used to get lordly drunk and knock each other about. They would shove each other into the fire, club each other, slash at each other and at times would have murdered each other but for interference.

Finley describes a general debauch in which Billy and Betty participated He wrote:

"This was an awful scene for a sober man to look upon. Here were encamped between two and three hundred Indians, and one-third, if not one-half, drunk; men and women, raving maniacs, singing, dancing, fighting, stabbing and tomahawking one another——and there was the rumseller watering their whisky till it was not strong grog, and selling it for four dollars a gallon—his hired men gathering up all the skins and furs, then their silver trinkets, earbobs, armbands, halfmoons, silver crosses and brooches—giving a gill of grog for a dozen silver brooches—then their guns, tomahawks, and blankets, till they were literally stripped naked, and three or four were killed and wounded.

"The reader may set what estimate, he pleases, or call it by what name; yet, if there ever was a greater robber, or a meaner thief, or a dirtier murderer, than these rum-sellers, he is yet to be seen.'"

Finley records, however, that Billy and Betty finally "quit the bottle," became teetotalers, and lived to a ripe old age. Billy was blind for ten years before he died.

These old books are yellowed with years. They are strangely interesting. Much of their content is heavily written. They run to long paragraphs and many commas and semicolons. But they paint, nevertheless some remarkable pictures, some beautiful cameos.

Ford Digs Two Mile Tunnel for A Billion Gallons of Water a Day

NEARLY a billion gallons of water a day—more than is used by the cities of Detroit, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Washington combined—will be the capacity of a huge tunnel now nearing completion at the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, Michigan.

The tunnel will replace the present water intake system which supplies the Ford plants with 500,000,000 gallons a day. At the same time the company is remodeling its power house to greatly increase the power output. Both improvements, costing several million dollars, are being made to enlarge the production facilities of the Ford plant.

Sixty Feet Under Ground

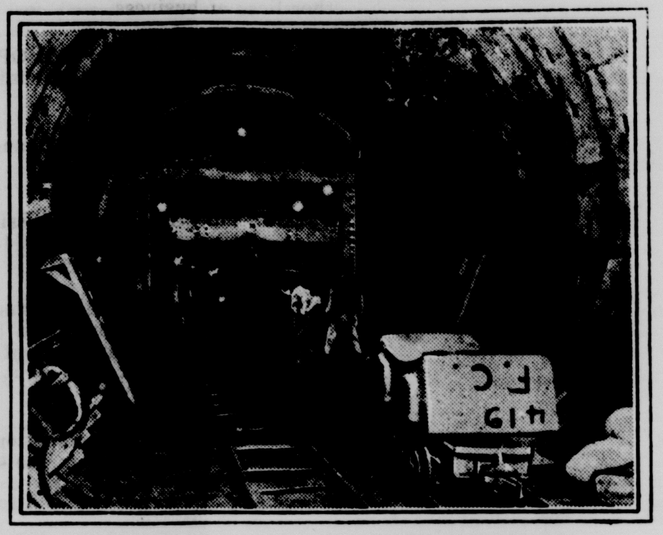

In constructing the waterway, the largest of its kind ever undertaken by a single business concern, the engineers are burrowing sixty feet under ground for a distance of two and a fifth miles. They have gone under main highways, railroads, street car tracks, bridges, a cemetery and a creek.

One of the most difficult tasks was that of tunneling under Baby Creek at a point which is crossed by a railroad bridge and where also a large sewer is under construction by the city of Detroit. The piles that provide the foundation for the bridge and those driven by the company constructing the sewer formed a network on each side of the creek. It was the task of the Ford engineers to burrow under the creek, sewer and bridge, going between the piles without striking or weakening them.

Boring of the tunnel is accomplished by means of a shield—a large steel cylinder fourteen feet long and twenty-one feet in outside diameter with a solid steel shell or skin two and a fourth inches thick. This shield has a bulkhead which is made fast near the front end. There are four openings through which the mud streams, like toothpaste from a tube, as the shield is shoved forward by twenty powerful hydraulic jacks.

When the shield has been pushed forward sufficiently concrete blocks two and a half feet wide and five feet long, each weighing 2,420 pounds, are placed to form a ring around the circumference of the tunnel. One of them acts as a keystone so that the lining of concrete, which is eighteen inches thick, withstands the pressure of the earth. After this steel forms are set up and filled with concrete to form a solid inner lining which is also eighteen inches thick.

The present intake system of the Ford plant has a capacity of 500,000,000 gallons a day. The new tunnel will be able to carry 913,000,000 gallons.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

On receipt of his ballot the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the voting booths so provided, and shall prepare his ballot for voting in the following manner: Should the voter desire to vote a "straight" party ticket he shall place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below the party name. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates on more than one party ticket, by voting what is commonly called a "split ticket" he may place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below one party name and mark cross (X) marks in the squares at the left of the names of candidates on other tickets for whom he wishes to vote. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates whose name or names do not appear on the printed ballot he may do so by drawing a line through the printed name of candidate for such office, and writing below such canceled name the name of the person for whom he desires to vote, and placing a cross mark in the square at the left of such name. The squares so marked shall take precedence over the cross marked in the circle. Where there are two or more candidates for like office in a group a cross (X) mark in the square to the left of a candidate's name, automatically votes against the candidate whose name appears within the same horizontal lines in the column under the circle in which appears the cross (X) mark unless the voter indicates another candidate to be voted against by drawing a line through such candidate name. All candidates of the party whose circle is marked shall be counted as voted for excepting where squares are crossed preceding the names of the candidates in other columns; if two or more candidates for the same office are thus designated, neither shall be counted. If the cross (X) is not placed in the circle immediately below the party name at the head of the column, but does appear in the squares opposite the various candidates' names, then only these names shall be counted for, and none other. A cross (X) mark is any line crossing any other line at any angle within the voting space, and no ballot shall be declared void because a cross (X) mark therein is irregular in form. It shall not be lawful to deface or tear a ballot in any manner nor to erase any printed name (except as provided above in this section,) figure, word or letter therefrom, nor to erase any mark made thereon by such voter, nor inclose in the folded ballot any other paper or any article. If the voter deface or tear a ballot, or wrongly mark the name or make an erasure therein, he may obtain one additional ballot on returning to the ballot clerk the one so defaced or wrongly marked. A ballot placed in the ballot box without any mark shall not be counted. Ballots shall be counted only for the person for whom the marks thereon are applicable; when a voter shall place a mark against two or more names for the same office, and only one candidate is to be chosen for the office none of the candidates shall be deemed to have been voted for and the ballots shall not be counted for either such candidate. Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his ballot in such a manner as to conceal his marks thereon. He shall mark his ballot without undue delay. He shall then hand the ballot to the judge of election selected to take ballots, who shall number the ballot and deposit it in the ballot box. The voter shall quit and leave said enclosed place as soon as possible.

Some of the Many Reasons Why Proposition No. 4 Should Be Defeated!

of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

Tudsday, October 28th

WORKER'S COMPENSATION INSURANCE

Of all the propositions submited to the voters of Missouri for their judgment at the election on November 4, the one of least merit is Proposition No. 4, which would create a State insurance fund for workmen's compensation. This would give to the State a monopoly of such insurance, prohibit the issuance of policies by private insurance companies and place this businses under the complete control of a political bureau.

There is, in the first place, no substantial justification for any change in the present laws governing insurance for workmen's compensation. Since the compensation law was enacted, it has been generally speaking, fairly and satisfactorily administered. It has given this State a long needed system of workmen's compensation for injuries sustained in industrial labors, in amounts that are reasonable and just, and at rates that are strictly regulated by the State Commission. As a matter of fact, the success of this Missouri law has been rather remarkable and eminently gratifying.

Yet, now it is proposed to make a change in this law, that would radically alter its entire basis of administration and set up a great political organization that would monopolize this form of insurance, and, we are profoundly convinced, seriously endanger its effectiveness as a beneficial agency in the interests of labor. The Legislature of Missouri has given careful consideration to this proposal and has properly rejected it as unsound and undesirable. But now the people of the State are asked to pass this very long, highly complicated and decidedly revolutionary measure, without any study of it—for detailed study of such a complex proposal by the whole people is out of the question —and wihtout an opportunity to change a word of it.

There is no good reason to believe that this change would really benefit either employes or employers. Claims are made for it, to be sure, but their validity is highly doubtful. They are not justified by the experience of the seven States that have adopted this monopolistic form of State insurance. One of these, Ohio, is held up as a notable example of success in State insurance, but the experience of the other six States is not paraded. As a matter of fact, none of their laws has worked as satisfactorily as the Missouri law, and the comparative success of even the law of Ohio is debatable. There is not the slightest doubt in our mind that the Ohio system, as well as the others, will eventually break down, and workers, as well as taxpayers, will lose by their failure. A political bureau, subject as it must be to frequent changes of direction and to continuous political influences, can never be depended upon to maintain satisfactory standards in an enterprise that properly belongs in the field of private business.

This proposal is simply and solely an experiment in State Socialism, an entering wedge for further experiments in that region of political theory. It is highly objectionable on that account, for nothing except Communism can be so dangerous to American principles, so destructive to American enterprise and individual opportunity as the advance of Socialism in this country. But aside from this fundamental and complete objection, there is not the slightest valid reason for setting aside the present law and substituting another of any character. The workmen's compensation law is doing well for all concerned. Let it alone. Proposition No. 4 should be overwhelmingly defeated.

1 PUTS the State in Business. Proposition No. 4 proposes to PUT THE STATE INTO THE INSURANCE BUSINESS. This is the opening wedge of Socialism and Government ownership. If this proposition is adopted, campaigns will be started to have the State go into other lines of business.

2 CREATES A STATE MONOPOLY, thereby eliminating Insurance Companies and their agents.

3 GIVES UNLIMITED POWER and authority to Compensation Commission.

4 GIVES Compensation Commission power to make unlimited number of jobs, thereby creating a powerful political machine.

5 GIVES Compensation Commission UNLIMITED POWER to appoint a preferred list of doctors and hospitals without approval of either employer or employee and gives no right of appeal from its decision.

6 GIVES Compensation Commission UNLIMITED POWER to make rates, to refuse to insure and to cancel policies without any right of appeal and without any supervision or control.

7 GIVES Compensation Commission UNLIMITED POWER to reinsure with any Company it may select without supervision. This is the greatest opportunity for fraud and graft ever proposed in this State.

8 GIVES Compensation Commission UNLIMITED POWER to determine the "ability" of employer to carry own insurance without limiting or defining the meaning of the word "ability" and without giving the employer any right of appeal to the Courts.

9 THE payment of compensation to the injured workman is so slowed up by RED TAPE that he cannot be paid on time.

10 WILL INCREASE GENERAL TAXES BECAUSE:

(a) ABOLISHES taxes now paid by insurance companies for school and general revenue purposes;

(b) IT makes no provision for any deficit created by the Compensation Commission and in such case the legislature would have to make appropriations to pay deficit, THEREBY RAISING TAXES GENERALLY;

(c) IT may require the erection of a building to house the multitude of job holders created by this new Bureau;

(d) IT COMPELS the State, Counties Cities, Town, School Districts and all other political subdivisions to carry insurance in the State Fund. LOCAL TAXATION WOULD BE INCREASED TO PAY INSURANCE PREMIUMS.

New Methods Adopted In Chilean Industry

Production of Nitrate Fertilizer in Sun-Parched Desert Is Speeded Up.

AMERICAN engineers are helping to revolutionize an industry up in the sun-parched mountains of northern Chile.

The application of modern methods of mass production is making the Chilean nitrate industry a model of 20th century efficiency, according to Conrado Rios Gallardo, former Chilean Secretary of State, who was a recent visitor to the United States before becoming his country's ambassador to Peru.

With the elimination of waste and the use of labor-saving machinery, a marked decrease, he said, has been made in the cost of producing the fertilizer under the difficult conditions found in the arid desert.

"Never before has the nitrate industry occupied as strong a position as it does today," declared Ambassador Gallardo. "Not only have the mechanical processes been vastly improved, but the production has been stabilized to the benefit of both the producers and the consumers of this fertilizer."

The Chilean Government has taken an energetic part in the improvement of the industry. It has aided the process through legislative enactment and has encouraged new American processes for mining and refining the fertilizer.

At present nearly one-half of the total capital invested in the industry is owned in the United States, pointed out the Ambassador. American farmers are also the largest users of Chilean nitrate, their consumption during the past five years averaging about 1,000,000 tons annually.

The nitrate fertilizer was first shipped to this country in 1830. It has been used ever since, and today it occupies the honor of being the oldest of the commercial fertilizers.

A spiritualist college is being built at the Chesterfield, Ind., camp of the Indians association of spiritualists.

Wholesale value for the 4,587,000 automobiles produced in the United States last year was $621.75 per car

MISSOURI LEADS IN ABOLISHING CROSSINGS

The Missouri State Highway system is far in advance of all other State road systems in eliminating railroad grade crossings. The Highway Commission's policy of safeguarding the public against tragic railroad crossing accidents is one of the outstanding examples of forethought and good engineering that is creating universal praise for the Missouri system.

When the Centennial Road Law was passed in 1921, there were 731 railroad grade crossings on the roads designated as the State highway system. Careful relocation of roads has eliminated 350 of these grade crossings.

In the past eight years, the State Highway Department has co-operated with the railroads, in building 170 grade separations, underpass and overhead crossings, leaving only 200 grade crossings on the entire system of 7640 miles. When the State road system is completed in 1934 there will be less than 100 grade crossings on the State system.

An example of what grade separations mean to the traveling public is illustrated in the construction of U S. 66 between St. Louis and Springfield. Formerly, there were 33 grade crossings on this much traveled highway. By careful relocation of the roadways, every grade-crossing has been done away with, and three overhead bridges carry the highway traffic over intersecting railroads The average cost of grade separations in Missouri is approximately $20,000 each; one-half of which is paid by the railroad companeis.

WARN FARMERS AGAINST FALSE CLAIMS FOR NEW GRAIN SORGHUM 'GROHOMA'

Farmers should not accept the claims advanced for a new grain sorghum, called Grohoma, which has been offered at prices twenty to fifty times those of well-known and adapted varieties, the U. S. Department of Agriculture warns. The claims in regard to the origin and value are sensational and inaccurate, sorghum specialists of the Bureau of Plant Industry say. There is no reliable evidence that Grohoma is superior to or will outyield other well-known varieties which have been tested and which may be recommended on the basis of experimental tests. Present information, says the Bureau, does not justify an exorbitant price for the seed of an almost unknown and untried crop.

About 30,000 telephone calls monthly for highway routings are answered by the California automobile association.

When the Statue of Liberty was put up in New York harbor, Bartholdi, the sculptor, invited his friends to a banquet given in the leg of the statue. There was plenty of room in the knee for a dinner party of 20. They climbed to their places at the tables by means of ladders, and the dishes were hoisted by pulleys.

There is a story told of Edison that on one occasion he worked for 36 hours and went to bed at 5:30 one morning. He was up at 7, having had about an hour and a half of real sleep. At breakfast, he was asked how he felt. ''Fairly fit", replied Edison. "I would feel a lot better though, if I hadn't overslept myself a whole half hour".

An exchange of Austrian children between city and country families privately arranged each summer for years, having proved a great success both from the standpoint of health and the broadening of the children's outlook on life, a campaign has been started in Vienna to have such an exchange organized on a large scale by the municipal authorities and the various child welfare societies.

One of the most important methods of controlling the cotton boll weevil is to destroy the cotton plants in early fall. Grubs and pupae of boll weevils, if left on the plants, will transform to adult weevils and these may live through the winter and attack the young plants next spring Burn or completely plow under the cotton plants after the crop is harvested, and before the first killing frost if possible. It is also a good plan to clean up grass and weeds along fence rows, in ditches, and around the edges of the cotton fields

Motorists on Missouri highways are warned against traveling at a high rate of speed in the early evening at this season of the year, as this is corn husking time in the northern section, and cotton picking time in the southern part of the State.

Twilight comes early at this time of year and farmers are prone to stay in the fields until darkness drives them out on the road toward home, or the cotton gin mills. Big lumbering wagons filled with corn or cotton are on nearly every highway after sunset, and because few of them carry lights, they easily trap the fast traveling motorist who does not have his car under perfect control. Common judgment warns us to "Sacrific Speed for Safety" during October and November, when danger luks around every curve and over every hilltop.

Victorian Furniture Returns

KEEP anything long enough and it will probably return to fashion! Once more the truth of this familiar saying is proved. Victorian furniture has been despised and scorned for years—along with the golden oak and mission atrocities.

But now the nice old pieces in black walnut, shiny mahogany and rosewood are being resurrected from many attics. They often need refinishing and re-upholstering. And then they're placed pridefully in the living room, waxed to a satiny polish which was typical of furniture of that era, and treasured as heirlooms.

After all, it wasn't the furniture itself which made Victorian parlors an object of ridicule. It was the overcrowding, and the stuffy fussiness of the rooms. Much of the furniture was very graceful in line and curve. And the richly ornamental carving—often in floral, leaf, fruit or shell designs—has a quaint and lovely charm.

And this is certainly the proper time for its revival—now that "wasp waists" are returning and debutantes are once more wearing mitts and affecting the chignon style of hairdress! In dress fashions we are nearer mid-Victorianism than we have been for many years. And the furniture of that age makes a sympathetic background for these new-old styles.

Old parlor and bedroom "sets," as well as what-nots, tables and sideboards will probably be worth restoring. If the wood surfaces have become deeply marred and scratched during years of disuse, refinishing is desirable as a glossy, flawless polish is correct for furniture of that time.

To refinish—the old paint should be scraped off with the aid of a varnish remover and the surface then washed with turpentine or gasoline. A suitable oil stain or spirit varnish should be applied, followed by a coating of wax. Preserve the old finish, if at all possible, treating it with wax to bring out all its original beauty.

You probably won't wish to fill your rooms with antimacassers, papier-mache boxes, shells, crystal globes, wax fruit and carpets enscrolled with cabbage-like roses in the true Victorian fashion! But several good pieces of Victorian furniture will add much charm and individuality to your home

By GRACE VIALL GRAY, Secretary, National Canning Contest, Shenandoah, Iowa.

(No. 3)

After food products are properly prepared and pre-heated or pre-cooked, they are then ready to be packed into glass jars. All jars should be washed clean and kept in hot water until ready to use. After the food has been pre-heated or pre-cooked one should work quickly so that the food does not cool. Be sure to fill the jars completely full, with a sufficient proportion of liquid to solids to prevent too dense a pack. Sufficient water should be used so that it can flow freely in the jar. With such vegetables as corn and greens, which are solid foods, authorities advocate using half as much water as vegetables by weight. Water in which the vegetables were pre-cooked is added for the liquid, thus saving all the vitamin contents of the vegetable.

When the jar is opened the liquid is served with the vegetable or used in making a sauce. To every quart jar of vegetables, add 1 teaspoon of salt. Most vegetables are improved by the addition of some sugar. To corn, peas and tomatoes, add 1 tablespoon of sugar. To beets, add 1 teaspoon sugar to each quart jar. The sugar is added not primarily for its sweetening qualities, but to intensify and restore the vegetable's natural flavor.

When fruits and berries are packed into the jar, the syrup in which they are cooked is put into the jar together with the fruit.

In canning fruits it is advisable to prepare in advance the syrup which will be needed. The degree of concentration of the syrup recommended for different fruits varies and is designated as thin, medium and thick.

For thin syrup use 1 cup of sugar and 3 cups of water.

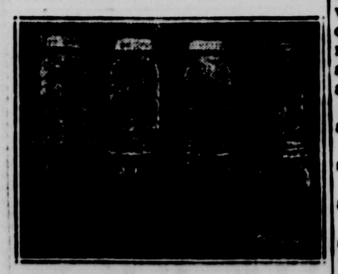

For medium syrup use 1 cup of sugar and 2 cups of water.

For thick syrup use 1 cup of sugar and 1 cup of water.

In each case the sugar and water are heated together and stirred carefully until the sugar is dissolved and the syrup brought to a boil. Fruit juice may be substituted for the water in any syrup with marked improvement in flavor.

IS YOUR ENTRY IN?

Prizes totaling $4,250 in cash, loving cups and ribbons, including a grand sweepstakes award of $600 in cash, are being offered to winners in the National Canning Contest, to be held at Shenandoah, Iowa, October 1. For free information and free ballmason jar and entry blanks, write to Mrs. Gray at Shenandoah.

It is just as easy to pack fruit attractively as to pack it hit-or-miss. Illustrated here are good styles of fruit canning.

India: Superstitions

WE ARE likely to think of the American Indian as very brave. The truth is he was filled with a myriad of fears. He lived a life of never-ceasing superstitious terror. We are likely to think of him as a man of few words. Instead, when we look into his habits, we find him a chatterbox. Tongues of the Indians wagged endlessly about their campfires when they were among their own.

The Indian was fearful, ceaselessly fearful, because he lived in a world of a million spirits of every sort, some good, but most of them bad. Many of his pagan beliefs were amazing.

When an Ojibway woman buried her dead husband, she would run from the burial place in zig-zag fashion toward her home, dodging from tree to tree. Her object was to elude the spirit of the deceased. At sundown the whole village would set up a clamor of noise, rattling various things at hand, shaking the doors of the wigwams and creating a general hubbub. The idea was to frighten away the spirits.

Lakes were the abode of spirits. They lived in caves and caverns and strange shaped rocks. High mountains were wigwams in which gods lived. Smoke coming out of volcanoes were fires in the giant tepees of these gods. If a spring bubbled, that was the breathing of some spirit. Echoes were spirits mocking the one who called.

Everything that could not be explained was laid to the act of some god or spirit. So an epidemic would lead to incantations and offerings to the spirits. Belief in witchcraft was common and there are many instances of record showing that both men and women, convicted as witches or sorcerers, were put to death.

Among many tribes no one, not even the bravest warrior, dared leave the tepee or camp circle at night. They were literally afraid of the dark. It is said that there were tribes in the Hudson's Bay territory that were so terror-stricken of the darkness that they kept their fires burning all night and slept only in the daytime. The Mohawks would never leave their dwelling places at night except in groups, because of their fear of the darkness.

A crow was like a black cat—only much worse. Many an Indian expedition has been abandoned, the tribe turning back, because a crow sat and cawed in front of the line of march.

The Otoes believed in a dwarf people, about eighteen inches high, who killed any who came near them. The Shoshones had a legend of a tribe of imps, two feet high, naked and with a tail. They called them Ninumbees. The Choctaws knew of a race of diminutive people who rode swiftly in the moonlight on the backs of deer and sang magic songs. These mythical people were known as itallaboys.

Blackfeet worshiped demons with much ceremony and self-torture. They had to torment themselves without showing any sign of pain. Some tribes buried their dead children by the side of a trail in the hope that their spirits might enter the body of some woman passing. If this happened they would be born again.

The Dakotahs believed that when one became ill it was due to an animal spirit entering the body. A toothache was the work of a woodpecker's spirit. Dreams played an important part in their superstitions. They found cause to either fear or worship almost everything in nature. Some tribes worshiped the sun and the moon.

Peculiarly shaped stones, bits of copper or iron ore, fragments of quartz became heirlooms or amulets and sometimes were cherished in families for generations. Such things, regardless of bulk or weight, might be carted around from camp to camp for many years. Medicine bags became the reposing places of strange bits of junk.

Sometimes when a great chief died the mourners would cut off fingers and otherwise mutilate themselves. Again they might rip off patches of skin. Such actions are supposed to be due to a morbid fear and terror of death.

When a whirlpool in some stream sucked down a man, the Indians believed a devil reached up from his abode and grabbed the victim. If a man fell and was hurt, a demon of some sort tripped him.

Prior to the coming of the whites, it is claimed, no Indian had any conception of a Supreme Being. The Algonquin word, Manitou, was applied to gods in general. Most gods were evil. They were things to be overcome. They might be met in the form of almost anything—a toad, perhaps, or a worm, or a turtle. Many tribes especially feared to kill a rattlesnake. When they met a rattlesnake they would gather around it, praise it, speak of it in high terms, call it grandfather and pledge their word that they would protect it.

Thus almost everything that came into an Indian's life, either animate or inanimate, might be haunted or a devil or a god. Everything was a "sign" to him and the most of his signs were bad ones. Compared with the Indian as he was, the southern negro is almost superstition-free.

Clipping Coupons A Thousand Miles Away

A THOUSAND miles away or so, perhaps at this very moment a gentleman is seated in a safety deposit vault busily clipping coupons from a number of bonds. Tomorrow this same individual—and thousands like him—will receive a dividend check through the mail.

The coupons represent interest returns on money loaned a large chain store syndicate. The dividend check represents his share in the profits of the selfsame organization.

We have no quarrel with these stocks or bonds; very likely they are a fine investment. But—it is also very likely that this chain syndicate has an outlet in Sikeston. Perhaps two or three. And as far as contributing to Sikeston's prosperity, directly or indirectly, these stores are a "total loss."

But what about the INDEPENDENT retail merchant? He borrows money at the LOCAL bank. Interest on the loan is not paid to bond-holders a thousand miles away, but swells the amount of money the bank has available for commercial loans to OTHER LOCAL BUSINESS MEN. Profits are not paid to widely scattered stockholdere, but increase the spending power of local residents, making them a greater potential buying power of goods sold by other Sikeston firms. Money is thus kept circulating at home. Public improvements are possible. If only for these economic reasons, the INDEPENDENT Sikeston merchant deserves your support!

WOULD MODERNIZE MISSOURI AUTO CODE

A campaign to modernize Missouri's motor vehicle code by establishing a State Highway Patrol, a Driver's License and passing a Safety-Responsibility law by the next session of the Legislature, has been launched by the Automobile Club of Missouri.

"The three fundamental features that in our opinion will be vital factors in bringing about street and highway safety ni this State will be enactment of a State Highway Patrol, a Driver's License law and a Safety-Responsibilty law.

"Briefly, the recommendations concerning these three features are as follows:

"1—A State Highway Patrol to be composed of 157 officers and men providing a patrol for at least each 50 miles of our State Highway System. Study of results obtained in other States shows this to be the most practical and most efficient each beat of 50 miles being as much as a man can cover properly.

"Their duties would be limited to enforcement of motor vehicle laws protection of the highways and anything incident to that work, because by reason of that fact such a force could be paid ,under the constitutional amendment of 1928, from present automobile license fees and gasoline tax. The income from those sources will be ample to take care of all requirements of road building and maintenance, finance requirements of the road bond issues and this patrol force. No additional tax would be levied.

"3—A Safety-Responsibility law will require a license for every driver of an automobile subject to revocation or suspension for major offenses such as driving while intoxicated leaving the scene of an accident reckless driving, or having frequent accidents. Such a license to be issued for a nominal fee.

"3—A Safety-Respnosibility law similar to that passed in that last few years in New York and several Eastern States, Calfornia and, which after an exhaustive investigation by a government commission has just gone into effect in the Province of Ontario, Canada. This is a move to require the reckless and irresponsible drive to deposit with the State evidence of financial responsibility before he is permitted to drive his car within the State".

BAPTIST GIRLS WILL CONDUCT BAKE SALE

A group of 15-year-old girls of the First Baptist church will conduct a bake sale Saturday, November 1, at the L. T. Davey Plumbing Shop. Fresh cakes, pies and candies will be sold from early morning until the supply is exhausted. Prospective buyers are urged to come during the morning hours to secure Sunday sweetmeats.

MURDER VICTIM PLACED ON RAILROAD TRACKS

Bismarck, Mo., October 29.—Authorities today were investigating the slaying of an unidentified man whose body was placed on the Missouri Pacific Railroad right-of-way a mile south of Vineland, where it was decapitated by a Missouri Pacific train yesterday. The body thus far has not been identified. Coroner Gibson said death was caused by a stab wound several hours before the body was placed on the tracks to create impression the train had killed the man.

Bill Smith, Jr., and sister, Mrs. Charles Berthe, with Mrs. Runke, of New Madrid, were in Sikeston on business, Tuesday.

Development On The Political Battle Front

Experience proves again that time brings changes in most everything, including political battle lines. The Democrats started their County campaign under the slogan, "Boost your own stock and let the Republicans do their own advertising!" The Republican County Committee and candidates, seem to have started their's under the battle cry, "Advertise the faults of the Democrats and maybe the voters will forget some of ours, including Mr. Hoover!" Anyway, the Republican campaigners started out complaining about most everything and everybody with a Democratic complexion, whether a candidate, officer or whatnot.

DEMOCRATS CHANGE FRONT

Despite continued assaults, the Democrats ignored this "mud-slinging" and refused to indulge in personalities, until these Republican speakers grew bold to state that the Democrats were just afraid to try to reply to these charges. The Democrats seeing that silence was no longer a virtue, then challenged these Republican Campaigners to a joint public debate of these charges, and a comparison of records. That challenge still stands, but has not been accepted to date.

AND HOW

We calculated as how it would save a lot of time and wind for both sides, and enlighten the voters in a big way, to give them the benefit of the joint intelligence, information, and, oratory of both sides, all at one sitting; that both sides together could, and likely would, hand out sufficient information at the first "meetin' " to settle two or three elections; and then both sides could adjourn this campaign and all go fishing. But the Republican speakers declined our invitation with thanks, and wrote us up in the papers. However, our replies and comparison of records, have brought a number of changes in the Republican Campaigners' battle lines.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGNERS CHANGE FRONT

1. One of their early campaign charges was that our County Clerk's books were not kept to date and his office was badly managed.

(a) When they were reminded that no grand jury had ever found anything wrong,

(b) That the last grand jury had highly commended Mr. Smith and his records,

(c) That Mr. Smith was inviting the public to visit his office and see for themselves, and

(d) That Mr. Pearman's (his opponent) oversights, when he was County Clerk, had cost the County several hundred dollars, that charge against Mr. Smith was dropped.

2. Charge number two was that the County Court had hired lawyers to do the work of the prosecuting attorney in the County Bond suit and the Road Refund matters. When it was pointed out:

(a) That the prosecuting attorney is not shirking any work or duty in either of these cases, but appeared and did his utmost in the County Bond suit, and is doing all he can in the Road Refund matter, but was simply furnished some legal assistance in these important cases,

(b) That it would have been bad business policy to risk such large amounts of the people's money on just the prosecuting attorney, when the defendants were represented by a large corps of the ablest lawyers in the State,

(c) That every County in this section of the State had hired legal assistance for their prosecuting attorneys in these road cases, and

(d) That Mr. Roger Bailey, Republican candidate for prosecuting attorney, and City attorney of the City of Sikeston, has the same obligation to represent his city in all legal matters that the prosecuting attorney has to represent the County, and that Mr. Bailey has had legal assistance at the expense of the city in every important case the City has had during his term of office, that charge was abandoned, and Mr. Bailey himself now admits in his published statement last week:

"It was proper for Mr. Montgomery to have help in this particular suit (County Bond Suit). It was burdened with too much responsibility for Mr. Montgomery or any other one lawyer".

While Mr. Bailey does not mention the Road Refund case in this statement, since a much larger amount of the people's money is involved in that case, than was at stake in the County Bond Suit.

3. After admitting that it was proper to hire legal assistance in these cases, they next said that Mr. Lucas was being paid too much by the County Court. When it was pointed out:

(a) That the County Court settled with Mr. Lucas in the Bond case for 15%, which was 10% less than than the school boards themselves had agreed to pay him,

(b) That Bailey & Bailey (Roger and his father) had charged the Sikeston School District, which they represented in the bond suit, 25%, while Mr. Lucas had settled with all the districts he represented for 15%,

(c) That Bailey's & Bailey's charge in that case was about three times the per cent Mr. Lucas was to receive in the Road Refund case, and

(d) That every county in this section of the State had hired legal assistance in these road matters, and on less favorable terms to the County than Mr. Lucas' contract called for,

that charge was likewise abandoned, and in Mr. Bailey's published statement, he further admitted:

"That Mr. Lucas was employed to help him (the prosecuting attorney in the School Bond case) is without just criticism or objection".

Then they said that Judge Brady, Republican County Judge, did not consent to the Road Refund contract with Mr. Lucas. When they found out that not a single one of the eight or more persons present in the court room when that matter was passed upon, but who says that Mr. Brady not only voted for this contract, but expressed himself as highly pleased with it, this ceased to be a talking point.

5. Then they said some money was transferred to some drainage district. But, they found out that George Arnold, Republican County Treasurer, was the prime mover in that transfer and the one who actually made the transfer. So that ceased to sound good.

6. They also said that Mr. Lucas gets free rent and library. Just why they jump on Mr. Lucas, we don't know, as he has never held office and is not a candidate. But, as to this charge, they found out that Mr. Lucas was furnishing the Probate office, free of charge, a Probate Clerk and stenographer, which amounts to many times his office rent, was himself attending to Probate duties in the absence of the Probate Judge, and was also furnishing the Probate office more library than the Probate office was furnishing him. So that charge passed out.

7. They also said some county funds were short of cash. But later admitted that they had just forgotten that these were hard times, with lots of delinquent taxes.

8. They also assailed the records of the Democrats and praised their own, but, when later comparison didn't sound so good, they dropped this.

So one by one these Republican Campaigners have abandoned all of their original charges, but now Mr. Roger Bailey, Republican candidate for Prosecuting Attorney, gets back to the County Bond case, and says that he has discovered an entirely new fly in the ointment, and he describes it thusly, in his published statement last week:

"The criticism lies in this. Mr. Montgomery was prosecuting attorney and Mr. Lucas was employed by the County Court. With this agreement they should have gone on and rendered their services in this case. They should not have brought in the school districts from all over the County and made contracts with those who would agree to it for additional attorney fees to be paid by these individual districts".

Tut! Tut! now, Roger, and piffle! You surely can't be serious. Why Roger, you came to that school board meeting yourself, and tried to get all of these school districts to employ you and your Father (Bailey & Bailey)—tried to contract with them for the very "Additional Attorney fees", as you express it, that you now say is all wrong and subject to criticism. And you were obligated to appear in the case, as you suggest. And you would have been a party to whatever wrong there was about it, except that these school boards turned your proposition for employment down, and voted to hire Mr. Lucas. What was there wrong about Mr. Lucas being employed that would have been different if Bailey & Bailey's proposition had been accepted? And Roger, if there was anything at all wrong about it, you have been in on the secret since that meeting in May, 1928. How come, that you wait until you are a candidate, to write us up? You didn't even think to mention this in your 1928 campaign speeches, when it was fresh. Roger, we honestly think that you are one of the finest boys in Scott County, and we call you Roger rather than the formal Mr. Bailey because we like you. But now just between friends, don't you sorter feel like you have gone a long way in this campaign in trying to get votes by finding fault with somebody?

Surely there was nothing wrong in each school district and fund involved, paying its proportional part of the expenses of this suit, and the matter was handled and settled on exactly that basis. You speak of "Additional attorney fees", thereby insinuating that Mr. Lucas made double charges—that is that he got the county court to pay him 15% of the total sum and then got each district "Who would agree to it", as you express it, to pay him 15% of their part. Such is not the case as you can find by a little figuring. Mr. Lucas simply charged each district and fund involved (Sikeston district excepted, since it had its own attorneys, Bailey & Bailey) 15% of the sum recovered for them.

Your published statement indicates that you think the County should have paid all of the expenses of this suit, with no part borne by the school and drainage districts to which more than 91 per cent of this money belonged. Surely the county should not have been called upon to bear all of the expense out of its less than 9 per cent of the sum involved.

In your statement, you also seem to contend, and we agree to this, that though over 91 per cent of this money belonged to the school and drainage districts, still, since this bond was taken by the county, and this money was in the county treasury, the county court had full legal control of this whole matter and, without consulting the school boards or anyone else, could have hired such additional lawyers as they saw fit on such terms as they thought best. But, we submit that the county court and prosecuting attorney should be commended rather than criticised, for calling in and consulting the school boards and following their wishes. Mr. Lucas had no more to do with calling this meeting that you did, Roger, despite your plain insinuation to the contrary. And these school board members, and not the county court, provided for hiring this additional counsel, and selected Mr. Lucas and fixed his term of employment. And, in doing so, they did not, as you say, just contract with Mr. Lucas for "Additional attorney's fees" but each school district was merely obligating itself to pay its proportional part of the total expense. And Mr. Lucas was employed with the distinct understanding that he was to employ additional legal help and pay them out of his per cent, which he did, and the valuable help of Attorneys Wammack and Welborn of Bloomfield, would not have been otherwise secured.

WE FEEL COMPLIMENTED

We believe that everyone, who has followed the present campaign, will agree that the Republican County candidates and committee, have been willing and industrious, industrious, in trying to find and advertise all of our faults. Their admitted failure in that regard is, we modestly submit, substantial evidence that our record is good, and is trustworthy assurance that we will endeavor to merit your continued confidence and support.

LEGUME GROWTH TO BE STUDIED IN S. E. MO

A survey of legume production is to be made of farms in certain sections of Scott and Cape Girardeau Counties during the week of November 3 to 8 according to Ide P. Trotter, Extension Specialist in Field Crops. It is hoped to determine for these areas, first: What acreages of the different legume crops are now grown and what changes in these acreages have been made recently second: What practices or treatments are used in the attempt to make legume production more successful and third: To determine, as far as possible, what sources of information have been helpful in either introducing these crops or making their production more successful.

This work is being undertaken by the Agricultural Extension Service of the Missouri College of Agriculture in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture Division of Extension Studies. The purpose is to measure the results of extension activities in order to make this service to the farmers more efficient.

Mr. Trotter, who has been in charge of the Soils and Crops Extension Work in these counties for a number of years, has been conferring with County Agents A. J. Renner and E. T. Mallinckrodt with reference to advance plans for these studies.

"Farmers in the areas selected will be visited and asked about their acreages and practices in legume production", Trotter explained. "We wish to make the nature of this study clear to everyone interested or concerned. The information asked for on the farms visited is only that about practices in legume growing and related facts about the farm. No use or publicity will be made of facts given about individual farms. All individual records will be confidential. Only average results from a large number of farms in the area will be used". said Trotter "to get a reliable picture of actual conditions This will prove of value in planning future extension work".

"If these facts are known and appreciated by the farmers, they will be glad to welcome the man who calls on them and give him the information needed. The work is in no way commercial and the farmer has no obligation of any kind in connection with the study. His help in getting the facts will aid the Missouri College of Agriculture in serving the farmers of Missouri".

W. B. A. MEMBERS HAVE EVENING OF FUN

An intra-club contest in the local Woman's Benefit Association provided an unusual entertainment during the regular meeting last Monday night. Two rival factions in the organizations, named Diamonds and Stars, respectively, tried to outdo each other in presenting entertainment features. Sixty members and a number of guests enjoyed the evening.

The "Stars" first presented a play, "Back To School". Twenty pupils under the direction of "teacher", Mrs Birdie Fox, were given tests in read in' and 'rithmetic.

A "bum" band, under the direction of Mrs. Belle Morrison, proved to be the surprise stunt provided by the "Diamond" faction.

Costumes and instruments in the strange band were suited to the occasion.

Refreshments consisted of candy bars given by the Diamonds and lemonade given by the Stars. The lemonade was made from the juice of lemons donated for the occasion However, each doner had counted the seeds and paid a penny for each. The proceeds were turned over to the flower fund, swelling it to $1.62 Points are allowed for these affairs and for gaining new members. The Diamonds are slated as favorites.

A Hallowe'en party, planned for Friday night, has been cancelled by the organization. The Junior W. B A party is scheduled to be held in the I. O. O. F. Hall this Thursday night.

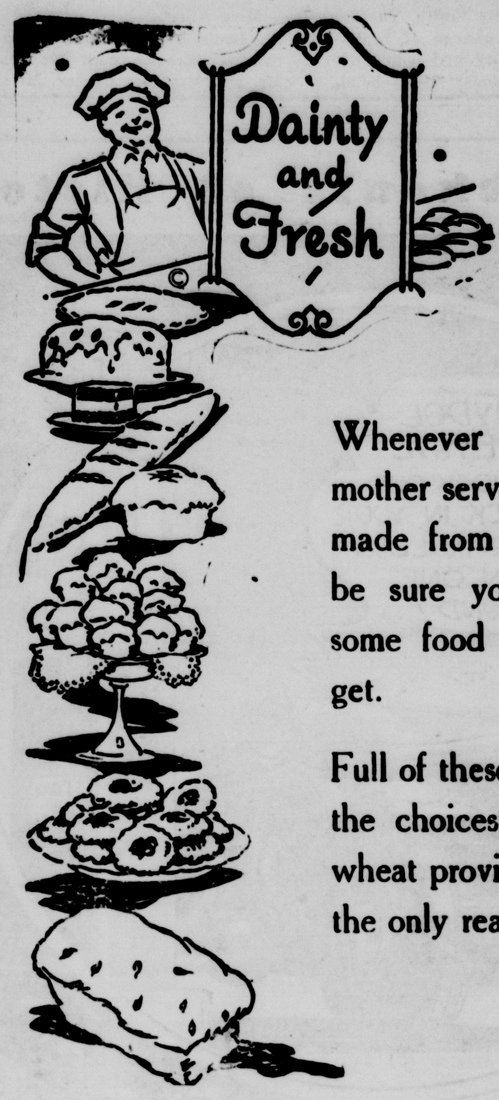

BROWN-LAIR WEDDING A SECRET FOR ONE YEAR

Parents of Wesley Lair, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Lair, of Charleston and the parents of Miss Dorothy Brown, 18, of Blytheville, Ark., learned Wednesday of the marriage of their children about one year ago

A hint dropped by the former Miss Brown, who is at present attending Southeast Missouri Teachers' College at Cape Girardeau, led to a search of the records in Blytheville.

Wesley Lair is now an understudy in the Waggener Funeral Home, St Louis. He will be associated with his father and brother in the furniture and undertaking business later.

Speaker Longworth finally has discovered what caused the present hard times: It was the damned Democrats and the more damnable Republican Insurgents who, in their zeal to prevent wholesale highway robbery of the people, fought and delayed the passage of the Grundy traiff measure. URGE STATE POLICE FORCE

Columbia, October 29.—Faced with a noticeable increase in farm thievery, Missouri farmers can hardly be blamed for taking the law into their own hands for self defense unless the State comes to their rescue with adequate police protection, declared Asbury Roberts, manager of The Missouri Ruralist Protective Service before a Farmers' Week audience here today, in an address urging the creation of a State Police Force.

"In practically every community thieves are making raids upon farm property and the Sheriff is almost helpless in his efforts to apprehend the guilty parties. The same system of law enforcement is in vogue as existed 50 years ago. Peace officers are handicapped by restriction to county boundaries; the fee basis of compensation creates a natural tendency for an officer to devote his time to the more lucrative and less hazardous duties of his office by serving civil processes. Similarly, his equipment in most cases is as comparable to modern crime paraphernalia as the old horse-and-buggy conveyances are antiquated beside high-powered motor cars.

"State Police officers in Canada Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maine and a score of other States are trained men. Besides being physically and mentally fit, they are subjected to rigid training before responsibilities are placed upon them. Well grounded in the law of evidence, the record of these officers shows more than 75 per cent of the arrests result in conviction. According to the Missouri Crime Survey report, more than 57 per cent escape conviction.

The velvet bean caterpillar, which is developing an appetite for soybeans in Louisiana and parts of Texas, can be controlled by dusting with sodium fluosilicate, acording to the United States Department of Agriculture. A light brand of sodium fluosilicate, analyzing about 80 per cent pure, will be effective when applied during the insects' larval stage.

LAIR BUYS ROSE FURNITURE STOCK

The stock, fixtures and accounts of the Rose Furniture Company were purchased Wednesday by The Lair Company of Charleston, when the assets were auctioned off to the highest bidder under the order from Judge Joe L. Moore, Referee in Bankruptcy for this district, F. D. Lair, Sr., who made the purchasing bid when asked as to the future course of the business here, replied, "The first move will be to replenish, rearrange and remark the stock from one end to the other with a view of giving Southeast Missourians a taste of real furniture and range bargains. We purchased this stock at an extremely low figure and are going to sell it on a similar basis. I am not in a position just now to give further details but promise that information of great interest to furniture buyers will be forthcoming soon in the way of advertising. The store will be continued in present quarters until further notice, but will be closed for several days in order that we may get ready for the special occasion".

OCTOBER ATTENDANCE LARGEST IN HISTORY OF SIKESTON SCHOOLS

According to data compiled in the office of the Superintendent, the average daily atendance of children in Grade and High School departments for the month of October was 1163 The figure exceeds any previous average attendance.

The total enrollment is also slightly in excess of any previous figure. There were enrolled in all departments of the school system 1152 white children and 109 colored, making a total of 1261, or about twenty-five more than the peak enrollment last year.

Mrs. Bert Engram entertained on Wednesday night with a Hallowe'en party for her children, Nora, Franklin and Vance. A large group of school chums and neighborhood children attended.

IT'S MY LONG LOST CANARY SAYS IRA

Bread cast upon waters is coming back many fold to Ira Shuffit, champion hard luck trucksters who recently broke a long mirror, paid for a broken door on his truck, and traded a canary bird for a trucking job. That's how the story really started, over that canary.

The bottom dropped out of the bird cage at a very unfortunate moment, and Ira staged a hasty retreat. Thursday morning, Ira received a ventilated package. It contained a small screech owl one of the big-eyed, brown feathered birds credited with much wisdom and night work. 'It's my canary, come home to roost", reflected Ira as he fondled his newfound pet.

MISSISSIPPI CO. TAKES LEAD IN COTTON GINNINGS

According to the government cotton report issued for October 18, total ginnings in Mississippi County were 4797 on that date as compared with 2331 on October 18 last year.

Scott County held the lead over its neighbor for several weeks, but drops back with only 3775 bales up to October 18, as compared with 2288 for the same period in 1929.

9:30—Remember be on time for Sunday school. It is easy to be late but just as easy to be on time if you plan for it.

10:30—General Assembly and Morning Service.

We were more than pleased with the fine congregation last Sunday morning. Let us strive to keep up this good attendance.

6:30—B. Y. P. U. Our new director, Brother Will Hayden, will be in charge of the General Assembly.

7:45.—Sermon. The pastor will be absent due to the fact he must leave Sunday afternoon to get to Kansas City in time for a meeting Monday afternoon. Brother Lem Council, who has charge of our Mission, will deliver the message of the evening. Let us give him a good audience.

B. Y. P. U. Training School

We are fortunate to have Mrs Burch of Springfield with us for our annual school. Mrs. Burch has had a great deal of practical experience in her line of work. She served as director in her own church and saw her unions grow from two to fourteen.

We have invited the Southern half of the Charleston Association to cooperate with us and make this an Associational Training School. We will get double credit for it. Presidents, let us see that our unions are one hundred per cent. The annual B Y. P. U. Training School will be held November 9-16.

Winans Revival

Evangelist W. G. Winans is to begin a revival meeting at the First Baptist Church of Sikeston, November 16. Brother Winans has been to Sikeston and most of us know him We ought to have a good meeting but a great deal of the success of the meting depends on the local church membership. If we went a true revival, let's begin now to get ready.

OUST CARROLLTON PASTOR

The First Baptist Church congregation at Carrollton voted Sunday to declare the pulpit vacant, owing to refusal on the part of Rev. W. W Woodson to observe a quarantine order following the death of Sheriff Schnapp's 7-year-old daughter from infantile paralysis, and Woodson's subsequent arrest and a twenty-four hour incarceration in jail. Woodson is a portege of the notroious Rev. Frank Norris of Ft. Worth, Texas and a self-styled prophet of the immediate second coming of Christ.

The Young People's Missionary Socieyt of the Methodist Church are giving a Hallowe'en party at the home of Mrs. C. E. Felker Thursday night. This same Society of young folks is preparing their usual box of food and clothing for Kingdom House.

NO LESS THAN NOTHING

A fellow casually remarked to me the other day that he "would rather hear somebody say "look at that cowardly devil run" than for them to stand over him and say, "doesn't he look natural". Another supplied that he "would rather be a coward all of his life than a corpse five minutes".

Did you know that—

Matthews lost the football and basketball championships each by one point to Gideon High School?

Matthews hasn't been able to get a scheduled football game with Sikeston High and reasons that they shouldn't haven't been presented to us

$120,000 Painting Is Found To Be a Fake. Edward J. Holmes, director of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, will probably have a new and complicated case of "painter's colic" after getting hooked for $120,000 with a new painting on an old canvas.

The Head of the Neet Hair Removing Company Loses Wife by Divorce. Probably he carried a bottle of his hair remover out to dinner to take the hairs out of his soup.

It's a wonder the theological seminaries don't do some strenuous advertising. Their courses in political science or political strategy ought to be the best presented in the country after the way the preachers turned the last election into a system of propaganda and mudslinging.

"Legs" Diamond is "standing in San Francisco Bay with the water up to his chin", practically, but he refuses to "go west". But he is going South as soon as he is released from the Welfare Island Hospital. I wonder if his residence in Florida with Capone won't about ruin the real estate market down there.

Without a doubt the national emblem of Poland should be a cut of the Piano of Paderewski, who is practically the Savior of Poland. No doubt the building of hospitals, highways and railways are dependent upon the success of his "Farewell Recital" in this country.

Hon. R. L. Ward spoke to a nice crowd at Matthews Tuesday night He talked from the two texts of: "The Difference Between Man and Monkey, in That Man Thinks", and "If You Aren't Satisfied With What You Are Getting, By the Grace of God, Change!" He touched upon the Farm Relief with his usual congenialty and in acquiescence to our curiosities as to where Short was when the voting on the Flood Control Bill was going on, he answered that. The speaking was enjoyed very much by all Democrats present.

The meeting Tuesday night was the biggest one that either party has held so far, even counting the church service held at the Christian church by Dewey Short, candidate for Congress, Republican ticket, second term—if you didn't know.

Missouri farmers are getting some $44,728,150 less for their products this year than they received last year. The level of farm commodity price is about 25 per cent lower this year than last year. If you like that kind of prosperity, then vote the Republican ticket; if you would appreciate a better grade of prosperity than the Hoover brand, then vote the Democratic ticket. "Hoover prosperity and prices", or "Wilson prosperity and prices"—take your choice at the polls November 4th.

It the Hawley-Smoot Tariff bill) will be an ignominous failure. There was no demand for such legislation and no need for it. It has aroused fears and animosities all over the world, creating demands for reprisals that in some important countries have already resulted in retaliatory legislation inimical to our interests It has cost us enormously in world trdae. It would work harm rather than good to the farmers, in whose name it was obviously undertaken and it would lay upon American consumers a tremendous burden of increased costs. It is a calamitous measure without an atom of good in it.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat (Ind.) May 17.

The Sikeston Standard $1.50 per year

Rev. Bellanger, who filled the pulpit of the Sikeston Christian church for several months last year, was a visitor in the city Tuesday and paid The Standard a social call.

During the week The Standard paid into the coffers of Uncle Sam for postage for one set of bills for the Whiz-Bang Store, $92.54, which is the largest postal bill paid by The Standard during our business career in Sikeston. In addition to the 9150 posters sent through the mail, some 4000 more printed to be delivered by hand in Kennett, Hayti, Chaffee, and Sikeston. It was a well-printed poster, too, 8 pages 11x17½.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI NORTHEAST ARKANSAS

Medium to heavy rains fell in this territory during the week and were followed by colder weather. The first frost of the season occurred on the night of October 23. A heavy frost was reported at Hornersville Mo., but no serious damage resulted The average frost date for this section is November 1. Cotton picking has slowed up for the present. The turnout is poor in comparison with last year. Fall pastures continue to furnish plenty of grazing for live stock and quite a bit is being cut for hay. Fall gardens are numerous and excellent in quality. All Fall sown grains are up to a good stand and are making good growth. The Fall bean crop is turning out better than was expected and the canning factories are busy saving them.

PANTHER LAKE ASS'N. OF S. E. MISSOURI

Sikes Rogers and Lee Bowman were in Sikeston a few days ago in behalf of a resort at Panther Lake near Millerville in Cape Girardeau County.

It is proposed to purchase 453 acres of land in Panther Creek Valley in Cape Girardeau and Bollinger Counties, and to construct a dam across Panther Creek west of its intersection with Little Whitewater in order to provide a large lake for boating, bathing, fishing and outing purposes, all planned to be ready for next season. Little Whitewater however, 7000 feet away will provide fishing for the members from the start. The corporation proposes to stock the lake with game fish, provide play grounds, camp grounds, drives and some club house accommodations, and will assign individual camp sites to all members.

It is proposed to have a membership of but 300, the fee, $200 each in cash or installments, will pay for the land and improvements. Maintainance fund will not exceed $10 per year per member.

This seems to be very meritorious proposition and the location is ideal It is believed a number of Sikestonians will apply for membership as Panther Lake will be but a short drive on concrete roads to within a few miles of the grounds.

VOTE YES ... Help St. Louis Carry Out Its Great River Front Development Program!

ST. LOUIS wants to improve and beautify its Central river front, by widening and double-decking Third Street, which will convert a blighted district, now an eyesore, into a beauty spot of which all Missouri will be proud.

Proposition No. 6 is Necessary for the Early and Successful Completion of the Program

Proposition No. 6 is a Constitutional Amendment permitting marginal condemnation. It does not permit the indiscriminate condemnation of property, but only that bordering the improvement. Its principal purpose is to rid the improvement of unsightly fragments of bordering land, by giving the municipality authority to replot the property, and to control its use, so that it will be in keeping with the general improvement.

Only an Enabling Act

The St. Louis City Charter, adopted in 1914, provides for marginal condemnation, but the City cannot even consider the advisability of exercising this authority unless the enabling Constitutional Amendment is voted by the state at large.

Other Progressive States Have It

New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin and California possess similar Constitutional provisions.

PLACED UPON THE BALLOT BY 60,562 MISSOURI VOTERS

PARTY LEADERS SPEAK TO VOTERS

Both political parties kept faith with their constituents this week by presenting "vital" and "salient" points in the campaign to the voters. The Democrats first presented their side of the story through Dr. Wm G. Patton of St. Louis at the Armory Tuesday evening.

Dewey Short, candidate for re-election to Congress on the Republican slate, addressed his party followers in the same hall Wednesday night

Both speakers addressed representative audiences, and neither one succeeded in convincing "the other side". Candidates for major offices in the county were present at both meetings.

PECULIAR

Cass County, Missouri, has a town named Peculiar. This is how it got its name: On establishing it, the fuonders wanted a suitable name and asked the postoffice department at Washington to suggest one. The department didn't offer any name, but suggested one "peculiar" to the community so the city fathers just called it Peculiar and let it go at that.

A baby does not need shoes until walking time. Shoes put on before then, generaly for appearance, do more harm than good. The first walking shoes should have flexible but firm soles, unpolished, preferably slightly buffed, and broad enough to be a steady platform under each foot. Very soft soles curl and make more difficult the baby's task of learning balance. Stiff or broadlike soles are also to be avoided. The toes of the uppers should be full or puffy, not flat and cramping to the toes.

SENIORS EXCELL IN ACHIEVEMENT TESTS

As might be expected of lordly Seniors, worldly wise and exceedingly knowing in things pertaining to "book larnin' ", the theoretically wise group excelled in actual knowledge as measured in Standard Achievement Tests covered in the four-year course of English, Mathematics, Science and History. The tests were recently given to the Senior group.

In all lines the class was up to standard or above. The boys led strange as that may seem, in all lines except English, where the girls excelled. The boys proved themselves especialy apt in Mathmatics. On the whole, the class broke records established by the Seniors of 1929.

Ira Keller led in English and History; Audrey Reiss in Mathematics and Marshall Walker in Science.

DYNAMITE CAP AMPUTATES FINGERS ON BOY'S HAND

Kennett, October 29.—Ferris Campbell, 11, son of Ben Campbell was seriously injured when a dynamite cap exploded in his right hand causing him to lose all of two fingers and badly mutilating the rest of his hand. Several other boys are reported to have been injured in similar acidents, after finding dynamite caps strewn along the highway. An investigation is under way by County authorities to determine how the explosives were lost.

Mrs. C. L. Malone is on the sick list this week.

Mrs. B. J. Sands of Cape Girardeau spent Tuesday with the H. C Young family.

HOLD SERVICES FOR NEGRO ACCIDENT VICTIM

Illmo, October 29.—The body of a negro, killed in a highway accident Saturday night, was buried here late Monday without authorities being able to establish his identity. He was killed when struck by an automobile driven by Waldon Miller of Fornfelt, as Miller's automobile rounded a curve on Highway 61.

A suitcase, which contained some clothing apparently purchased at St Louis, provided the only clew as to his address. A coroner's jury held that the accident was unavoidable.

Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Limbaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Art Sensenbaugh had dinner in Anniston with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pate, Tuesday evening.

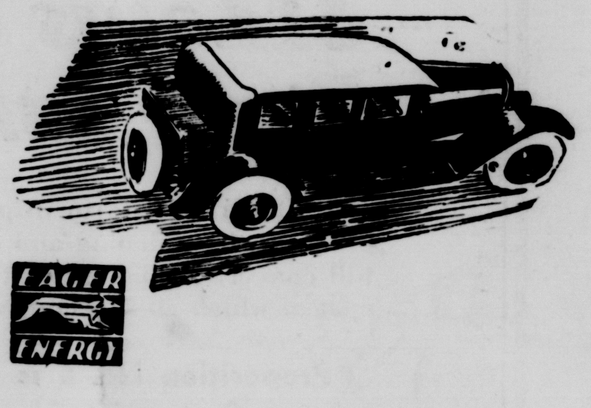

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Martin of Harrisburg, Ill., visited Mrs. H. C. Young a few days this week.
